INTERCOLLEGIATE BASE BALL.

Program for the Week's Play at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The intercollegiate base ball series of last week was won by the University of Virginia. This week four crack teams, representing Eastern colleges, will contest for the honors. The Amherst club arrived yesterday and the University of Vermont and the composite Yale club are due today. No game will be played today, but two are scheduled for tomorrow. July 4 will be World's Fair college day in the tournament. The carriage space and grand stand will be divided between the blue of Yale and the maroon of Vermont, the red and black of Wesleyan and the purple and white of Amherst. The morning game will be between Amherst and Wesleyan, and will be called at 10.30 o'clock.

In the afternoon Yale will meet Vermont at 3.30.

The schedule for the week is as follows: Tuesday, at 10.30 A. M., Amherst vs. Wesleyan; Tuesday, 3.30, Yale vs. Vermont; Thursday, loser of the morning game Tuesday and University of Virginia; Friday, loser of Tuesday's afternoon game and winner of Thursday's game. Saturday, winners of July 4 games.

TROUBLE IN A BROOKLYN CHURCH.

Charges Made by an Assistant Against Rev. Dr. Potter.

NEW YORK, July 3.—There was trouble in Dr. Potter's Baptist Tabernacle yesterday. Charges were brought against the pastor some time ago by his assistant, Rev. Dr. Putnam, and a committee has been investigating them ever since. Dr. Putnam thought the committee was slightly favoring Dr. Potter, so he issued a circular to be distributed at the church door yesterday—communion Sunday. This letter reviews the case from the beginning and upbraids the congregation for upholding the pastor in the face of what the author considers positive proof of his guilt. Some of Dr. Potter's partisans called on the police to prevent the distribution of the circulars, but before the officers arrived they had all been distributed and no arrests were made.

THE BI-METALLIC LEAGUE.

Call for a Convention to Save the Sherman Law.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The call of the Bimetallic League for the Chicago convention on July 26 will be issued today. It will denounce the conspiracy against silver, set forth the alleged evils to result from its demonetization, inveigh against the gold standard, and depict the benefits to accrue from a uniting parity of the two metals. The convention will be purely one of the ways and means to encompass, if possible, the defeat of the repeal of the Sherman law.

Provincetown Whaling Schooners Reported.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., July 3.—Letters from whaling schooner Charles Hodgdon report the arrival at New York with davits and sails stove; she has four hundred and forty barrels of oil, all told. She left on the Hatteras grounds the Provincetown ships William A. Crosier, with three hundred barrels; Gage H. Phillips, two hundred and sixty barrels; Aloyone, two hundred and sixty-five barrels; and Rising Sun, one hundred and thirty-five barrels.

East Weymouth Lasters' Strike Settled.

EAST WEYMOUTH, Mass., July 3.—The strike of the lasters at the shoe factory of M. C. Dize; & Co. has been settled and the men will return to work Thursday morning, the matter of a new price list being adjusted satisfactorily to both parties.

HOW IT LOOKS ABROAD.

European Nations Considering the Silver Question.

VIENNA, July 3.—The Politische Correspondenz says that the fall of silver will not influence unfavorably the Austro-Hungarian operations in connection with the currency reform. The Austrian and Hungarian ministers, it says, are discussing the time when the mints shall cease purchasing silver, and what steps are to be taken to provide employment for the silver mines at Przibram and Schemnitz after the suspension of work in the mines around these places.

The Neus Freie Presse prints an interview on the silver question, given to its London correspondent by Mr. Goschen, ex-chancellor of the exchequer. India's action in closing her mints to the free coinage of silver, Mr. Goschen said, must be regarded as temporary and tentative. India now possessed no real standard of value. It was impossible that such a state of affairs should continue indefinitely. Everything depended in India upon how the natives regarded the new measure. The natives were naturally conservative and esteemed the rupee as almost sacred. If they absolutely refused to accept the new measure, the government would be compelled to withdraw it.

BRUSSELS, July 3.—The Belgian government is reported to be about to convene a special conference of the Latin Union states, for the purpose of considering what action they shall take in view of the recent fall of silver. This special conference will precede the re-assembling of the international monetary conference.

FALL RIVER FIRES.

Two Blazes of Incendiary Origin Early this Morning.

FALL RIVER, July 3.—The city was threatened with two great fires at a very early hour this morning, and both were of incendiary origin. The first was started at the rear of Gronard & Smith's paint store on North Main street, where a long row of low wooden buildings is occupied by merchants of all kinds. The scene is only a few blocks from the Central engine house, and by prompt work the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to two stores. A still alarm was answered from the same fire about twenty minutes after the alarm was rung in. The damage will be less than $1,000 and is covered by insurance.

The fire department was hardly in its quarters before an alarm was rung in from box 13, calling assistance to Cook, Borden & Co.'s lumber yard on Davol street, the most extensive lumber yard in the city. The fire had been burning at least thirty minutes before the alarm was given. That it had been set afire was shown by bundles of oakum, found underneath the lumber. When the department arrived a million of shingles and a half million feet of lumber were throwing out the hottest kind of flames. Engines and water works streams were directed toward the blaze, but it was not until 8 o'clock this morning that the firemen left the place. The lumber was thrown into the river, which is now littered with floating shingles. During the progress of the fire several roofs in the vicinity were ignited by flying sparks, but fortunately for all there was only a very light wind blowing from 1 till 8 o'clock. The total damage has not been estimated as yet. Edward Dwire of Hook and Ladder No. 1 suffered a fractured collar bone from being struck by a falling plank.

Professional Burglars at Work at Boothbay.

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Me., July 3.—Nickerson's store was burglarized Saturday night, but the robbery was not discovered until Sunday noon. The safe door was blown open and the cash box, containing $300 in money and checks, was taken. The checks are not negotiable. The work was evidently professional.

Congressman Breckinridge Denies His Reported Engagement.

NEW YORK, July 3.—A special to the Sun from Louisville, Ky., says: Congressman Breckinridge, who is here on a visit, denies explicitly the story that he is to marry Miss Madeline Pollard.

Burglary at Natick.

NATICK, Mass., July 3.—Burglars entered the house of Colonel William Nutt, on Union street, early this morning, and secured $80 in money and some valuables.

TWO MEN KILLED

Fatal Fire at the Torpedo Station.

An Explosion in the Gun Cotton Factory.

Jeremiah Harrington and Frank Loughlin Dead.

Three Seriously and Many Others Slightly Injured.

At 1.45 o'clock this afternoon the whistling of steam whistles at the Torpedo Station called the attention of all along the water front to the station where a dense column of smoke and tips of flames showed above the machine shop. It had hardly dawned on the spectators that there was a chance for a sad accident, when the whole water front was moved by an explosion which sent a dark mass of smoke far into the air. Tug Aquidneck promptly responded to the alarm but could do nothing without hose. The department on the island had, however, promptly responded, and soon had lines of hose running to the fire and the big Amoskeag engine was doing the best to put down the blaze which, within fifteen minutes, had subsided so that from the city it looked as though the fire was out.

When a News reporter reached the island, the fire seemed well under control, but the guard about the old fort, in which the fire was, showed that all danger was not passed. The officials stated that the fire was discovered about in the middle of the gun cotton factory, though what its origin was is still a mystery. It spread rapidly, but the force on the island, realizing the danger were almost as brisk in their efforts to remove the gun cotton, which was stored in boxes and lay loose in the factory. A very considerable portion of this had been removed and the men were busily engaged fighting the fire when the explosion occurred.

A large number were more or less injured by flying fragments of the gun cotton factory, but all but five were able to take care of themselves. These were Ensign E. E. Capehart, Jeremiah Harrington, Frank Loughlin, John T. Harrington and Michael Reagan.

Ensign Capehart was removed to the electrical laboratory where it was found his injuries were not serious. The others were taken to the dispensary where Harrington and Loughlin soon after expired. The others were reported to be not fatally injured.

Frank Loughlin, one of the victims, was about twenty-seven years of age and leaves a widow and one child. He resided on the point. Jeremiah Harrington, aged about 33, leaves a family. He resided down town. Both have been employed at the gun cotton factory for some time. John T. Harrington, one of the injured, is a machinist and a brother of Jeremiah. Michael Reagan is very severely injured, and is not expected to live.

The gun cotton factory, situated inside old Fort Walcott, was totally destroyed. It was a low wooden building or rather a collection of buildings and was about one hundred and twenty feet long by from fifty to seventy wide, and of about one story in height. None of the other buildings within the fort were burned.

The fire and explosion caused consternation on the island and the officers families did not know but that everything was going up. As soon as they learned the facts they did what they could to assist the injured.

Those who were struck by flying splinters continued about the work of fighting the fire as though nothing had happened. A few were so bruised that they were unable to do anything, and were brought to Newport.

Tug Aquidneck was unable to work when she arrived and was at once sent back to town for medical assistance for Surgeon Fitzsimons in the care of the injured. Securing a physician, the tug at 2.15 took in tow the harbor transportation with hose reel No. 1 on board and proceeded to the west side of the island where with the additional hose she can work more effectually in subduing the fire.

Commodore Converse evidently did not think any one killed, for his first telegraph to the Navy Department stated that three men only were injured.

In view of the very large number of Newport men employed on the island there was much apprehension felt on shore until the truth was finally known.

The discipline on the island seemed perfect in spite of a demoralization caused in a force composed largely of civilians. Captain Bunce, as soon as the fire alarm was given, sent a boat load of boys and men to the station. They assisted the regular force in the work.

THE GETTYSBURG DESECRATION.

Within the last few weeks a storm of protests has broken upon the heads of those who are responsible for the scheme of running an electric railway over the famous battle-field of Gettysburg. It is thirty years since Meade and Lee decided the issue between the North and the South at that little town, within seven miles of the Maryland line. Since then the veterans of the blue have regarded as holy the scenes of the three days' awful struggle, and Gettysburg has become known the Union over as the "American Mecca." With a reverence unappreciable by the ordinary civilian the veteran has journed back to it, and, standing bareheaded on some hallowed spot, has recalled with mental vision the awful carnage that swept from the Round Tops to the Cemetery. The imagination was not taxed greatly to reproduce the scenes, for the field has remained mainly as it was in '63, and the conditions that existed then have been preserved by the gratuitous efforts of the Memorial Association, aided by the various states that were represented in the Army of the Potomac.

The battle-field of Gettysburg covers twenty five square miles, the first day's engagement having occurred to the north and west of the town, and that of the second and third days to the southward. It is over the second and third days' field that the electric railway has run its desecrating track, ploughing, hacking, blasting and destroying everything that impeded its progress, and shattering with vandalistic completeness all the sentiment that has hung over the blood-stained ground.

The trolley goes out the Emmittsburg road—that runs about midway between Seminary and Cemetery ridges, upon which the two armies were stationed—to the Peach Orchard. Here it turns to the left, and pursues the narrow lane leading to the Taneytown road. Just before reaching the Wheat field it deflects abruptly to the right, making for the Devil's Den region.

The Memorial Association has from the first opposed the electric railway, and scorned the request for a right of way over its land and avenues. Consequently the trolley purchased from private parties the necessary privileges, and wherever possible it has run its route along the line of the Memorial Association's land.—[Harper's Weekly.

THAT EXTRA SESSION.

Deadlocks Likely to Cause Complications.

Bitter Fight Expected Before the Senate Settles Down.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The fact that the senators from the northwestern states are not unanimous on the silver question, and that some of them will probably vote to repeal the Sherman silver purchasing law, seems to lend an added interest to the contests which were pending when the senate adjourned in extra session in April last in the case of the senators from Montana, Wisconsin and Washington. In all three of these states the legislatures got into a prolonged deadlock and adjourned without electing a senator to fill the vacancies that were to occur on March 4. The governor of Montana appointed Lee Mantle, a Republican, but it is pronounced free coinage advocate, to succeed Wilbur F. Sanders (Rep.) Mr. Mantle's credentials were referred to the committee on privileges and elections, which in favor of seating the appointee, but the senate adjourned without action on his case and the seat remains vacant. The legislature of the state is controlled by Democrats and Populists, and the governor is a Republican. Should the Republican appointee of the governor be not seated the legislature would probably choose a Democrat or a Populist. Governor Richards of Montana was in Washington recently, and he declared very enthusiastically that he would not call the legislature together again if Mantle was refused a seat.

In Wyoming the legislature has a Democratic and Populist majority, but

Failed to Elect a Senator.

The governor, a Fusionist, appointed A. C. Beckwith, a free coinage Fusionist. His credentials were also before the senate committee without action when the senate adjourned.

In Washington state the legislature and governor both are Republicans, but the legislature failed on account of local fights to elect a successor to John B. Allen, republican, and the governor appointed him to succeed himself. His case was pending when the senate adjourned. Mr. Allen, it was thought, would vote for the repeal of the Sherman law if admitted to his seat. These three cases will probably bring on a bitter and protracted preliminary fight before the senate can settle down to the business for which the extra session was convened. The right of a senator to his seat is a question of the highest privilege, and senators on one side or the other of the silver question are sure to demand a decision on these cases before any vote is taken on the Sherman law.

CROP REPORT.

The General Conditions Excellent, as Reported From the West and Northwest.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The World published this morning a detailed report of the condition on July 1 of the crops in the western and northwestern states, the Pacific slope, Canada and Manitoba. The report shows that the wheat crop will be much below the average; that the corn crop will be enormous, and if the weather conditions continue good, will probably be the largest ever raised; that the acreage of oats, barley, rye and similar grains has increased and that the crop will be large; that the hay crop is everywhere above the average; that the general condition of the agricultural section is excellent.

What England Thinks of Cleveland's Call.

LONDON, July 3.—The Times is the only morning newspaper that comments on President Cleveland's call for a special session. It says editorially: Among all interested in sound finance and steady markets for securities, there is but one feeling of satisfaction at the return, belated, of the United States to a sound monetary policy. The Sherman act is one of the unwise laws mentioned in the president's proclamation.

Socialist Labor Party Convention.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The eighth convention of the socialist labor party of the United States was begun in Rochester hall yesterday. Delegates from various parts of the United States were present to take part in the opening meeting. The session occupied the entire morning, and in the afternoon a majority of delegates went to Waldheim cemetery to visit the graves of the anarchists.

Spurgeon's Son at Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, July 3.—In the Hanson Place Baptist church a royal welcome was extended yesterday to Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, son of the late Charles Spurgeon, the famous London preacher. He has been preaching in New Zealand for 18 years, and is now on his way home to London to take his father's pulpit in the London Tabernacle, where he will preach for the next year.

Three Boys Drowned While Bathing.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—Three lads were drowned in the Delaware while bathing yesterday. The victims are Jerry Triddle, aged 16, Milton Hammet, of the same age, and Arthur Sentz, aged 14. The latter two were together. All were diving from boats and were seized with cramps. One body has been recovered.

Fatal Collapse of a Bridge.

TROY, N. Y., July 3.—A footbridge over the canal at Cohoes collapsed yesterday while William Fryer, John Whittaker and two companions were crossing. Fryer and Whittaker were drowned. Their bodies were recovered.

ANGRY MISSOURI OFFICIALS.

The Governor and Ex-County Recorder in a Personal Encounter.

NEVADA, Mo., July 3.—A personal encounter took place at the Hotel Mitchell Saturday between Governor William J. Stone and A. J. King, ex-county recorder. Governor Stone has been called here as a witness in the case of the state, ex-rel Vernon county, against A. J. King, for retaining official fees. Governor Stone had been attorney for the county in the collecting of the amount prior to his election as governor.

Saturday night Governor Stone was seated in the hotel office writing. King came in and took a seat, and addressing his remarks to Congressman Morgan, asked if he had heard his testimony before Referee Casey. Mr. Morgan said he had not. "Well, I told the truth," continued King, "but Stone told a — lie."

The governor felt that the remark was intended for his ear, and, smarting under the intended insult, he quickly rose from the table and taking the crutch used by Frank P. Anderson, who was seated near by, made a dash for King, who warded off the blow with his arm and umbrella. The next moment they were grappling together, but were quickly separated. The umbrella, which saved King's head, was broken in pieces.

NOT ROOM TO TURN.

Admiral Markham's Report of the Victoria Disaster.

LONDON, July 3.—A midshipman from the Victoria arrived at Calais yesterday, with Rear Admiral Markham's dispatches concerning the collision off Tripoli. He was brought by special steamer to Dover and was conveyed thence by special train to London. He drove directly to the admiralty office, where the admiralty board, notified in advance of his coming, received and read the dispatches at once. The board decided to publish the dispatches in full forthwith. The first dispatch was dated from the warship Camperdown, on June 22. It says:

"It is with the most profound regret that I have to report the total loss of her majesty's ship Victoria, involving the loss of the commander-in-chief, Vice Admiral Sir George Tryon, 22 officers and 330 men, under the following circumstances: The squadron, consisting of her majesty's ships Victoria, Camperdown, Nile, Dreadnaught, Inflexible, Collingwood, Phaeton, Edinburgh, Sanspareil, Edgar, Amphrion, Fearless and Barham, left Beyrout about 10 o'clock this forenoon for Tripoli. Shortly after, the squadron formed single column line abreast and proceeded at the Rate of Eight Knots Per Hour.

"When five miles from the anchorage off Tripoli the signal was made at 2:20 in the afternoon to form columns of divisions in line ahead, disposed beam to port—the columns to be columns to be six cable lengths apart. We proceeded in this formation until 3:28, when the signal was given from the Victoria to the first division to turn 16 points to port and to the second division to turn 16 points to starboard.

"As the columns were only six cable-lengths apart it was not thought in my opinion within the maneuvring distance to execute such an evolution. I directed the flag lieutenants to keep the signal, which we were repeating at dip as an indication that the signal from the Victoria was not understood. I then directed them to signal with the semaphore, 'Do I understand it a wish for the columns to turn as indicated by the signal now flying?' But before my order could be carried out the commander-in-chief semaphored to me to know what I was waiting for.

"It then struck me that he wished me to turn 16 points, as indicated by the signal, and it was his intention to circle round beyond division, leaving them on the port hand. Having the fullest confidence in the great ability of the commander to maneuver the squadron without even risk of collision, I ordered the signal hoisted as

An Indication That I Understood.

"When the signal was hauled down the helm of the Camperdown was put hard aport. As the two ships turned toward each other, and, seeing the helm of the Victoria was still half-starboard, I directed the captain of the Camperdown to go full speed astern with the starboard screw, in order to decrease our circle of turning. Seeing that a collision was inevitable, I then ordered him to go full speed astern with both engines, but before the speed could be materially communicated the stem of the Camperdown struck the Victoria on the starboard bow, about 20 feet before the turret, and crushed into the ship almost to the center line.

"Seeing the critical condition of the Victoria, which seemed to be settling down towards the head, boats were immediately prepared for the rescue, when the open pennant was hoisted by the Victoria and the signal was made not to send boats. A few minutes later she keeled over to starboard and,

Turning Bottom Upward, Disappeared.

Hon. Maurice A. Bourke, the captain of the Victoria, sends to the admiralty a letter dated H. M. S. Nile, June 25. After a technical preface detailing the vessel's course, the writer continues:

"Shortly after 2 p. m., the commander said he should form the fleet into two divisions disposed to port, columns six cables apart, and when sufficiently past the line of bearing he would invert lines by turning columns inward 16 points, bringing the columns of divisions in the abreast to port. The staff commander suggested eight cables would be a better distance to form up in two divisions than six. The admiral said: 'Yes, it should be eight cables.'

"The chief commander went on deck and about 2:15 his signal was made for the fleet to form column of division in line ahead, columns disposed abeam to port, columns six cables apart. The staff commander then went to the admiral to say that six cables were flying and he had said eight cables. It

Was In the Admiral's Cabin.

The admiral said it was to remain at six cables.

"When the signal was ordered to be hoisted for the first division to alter the course 16 points to starboard I directed Lawson, a midshipman, to observe closely the distance of the Camperdown. He reported to the commander that it should be too close, and asked permission to reverse the port screw. This was done, and just before the collision both engines were going at full speed astern.

"The ship had turned 12 or 13 points when the Camperdown struck the Victoria on the starboard bow about 10 feet abaft the anchor."

Sandow Horsewhipped by a Water Queen.

NEW YORK, July 3.—"Lurline," the water queen who horsewhipped Sandow, the strong man, Saturday night, was arraigned in court yesterday and held in $300 bail for examination on a charge of assault. She was bailed out. Sandow said he had a number of blackmailing letters from "Lurline," but would not produce them then as they were locked up in his trunks that had gone on to Boston.

TILLMAN'S LIQUOR LAW.

Threats Made Against the Governor's Life and a Great Boom in the Jug Business.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 3.—The operation of the new liquor law, which makes the state the dispenser of drinking fluids, was begun in the midst of some trepidation on the part of the governor, his feeling in this respect being due to certain threats which came to him relative to his own safety. In view of these circumstances, Governor Tillman had the executive mansion guarded Friday night. There were no new developments, and the rumors could not be traced to any authentic source. As a result of the law there has been a sudden movement in the jug business, these articles being seen at many railway stations, bearing all sorts of labels. A number of saloons still keep their liquor on hand, and almost all the drug stores are charged with violating the law.

The gross receipts of the state barrooms throughout the state are said to be ridiculously small, and very few dispensaries have been opened.

THE NATION'S HEROES.

New York Dedicates Her Gettysburg Monument With Impressive Ceremonies.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 3.—With bright sunlight above and the fields on which Gettysburg's battle was fought stretching out below, New York state's handsome monument to the heroes who fell in the fight was dedicated yesterday with impressive ceremonies. It was the great day of the celebration of their 30th anniversary of the three days' fight. Seven thousand New York veterans, the governors of two states, the surviving generals of the battle and thousands of veterans and visitors from other states, were present to lend impressiveness and moment to the scene, and this day will go down in history as one of the greatest at Gettysburg since its battlefields ran red with the blood of the confederate and union dead.

Graves Makes a Personal Appeal.

DENVER, July 3.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves made a personal appeal to Judge Burns to be admitted to bail in the sum of $20,000. He said he wished to return to Providence to close up his affairs and provide for his mother's comfort. District Attorney Steele resisted the application, saying the unwritten law of the court demanded $30,000 bail. This amount Dr. Graves' attorney said it would be impossible to furnish, and the doctor was taken back to jail much downcast.

Released Anarchist Attend a Meeting.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Samuel Fielden, Michael Schwab and Oscar Neebe made their first appearance at a public meeting since their release from Joliet, at Zeph's hall Saturday evening. The occasion was the celebration of the German festival of Conmers by Brewers' Union No. 18. Neebe was one of the organizers of the union and he and the other two were the guests of the evening. The three men took no part in the proceedings.

A Wholesale Embezzler.

DALLAS, July 3.—T. J. Wood, late cashier of the Ninth National bank of Dallas, was arrested on indictments found by the United States grand jury, charging him with embezzling $220,000 of the money funds and credits of the bank and with making false reports to the comptroller of the currency. He is also charged with embezzling $20,000 of the funds of the First National bank of Rockwell, Tex., as its agent.

Ex-President of Nicaragua Coming.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Dr. Don Roberto Sacasa, the ex-president of Nicaragua, is coming to the United States and will arrive on the Pacific mail steamship due here on the 6th inst. from Panama. He is accompanied by his wife and proposes making a tour of the United States and perhaps a visit to Europe before returning to Nicaragua.

Confederate Reunion Postponed.

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—Adjutant General Gorman announces that the reunion of Confederate veterans, set for Birmingham, Ala., July 19 and 20, and General Underwood's excursion of the northern prisoners to the World's fair and unveiling at Chicago, have been postponed until Friday and Saturday, Sept. 15 and 16.

A Shady Real Estate Transaction.

CHEYENNE, Wis., July 3.—A real estate swindle has just developed here in which the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York has been defrauded of $44,073. A. M. Whitney, acting as the special agent in 1891, purchased 546 acres of land adjoining the city of Cheyenne as an investment for the company, representing that he paid $90,900 for the property. S. B. Newton, the special agent for the company in Chicago, has just ascertained that Whitney actually paid but $46,823 for the land.

Students Appeal to the People.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 3.—The state normal school graduating class, which was refused graduation because the members would not retract statements made regarding the board of trustees and President Parsons, have issued a long address to the people, in which they maintain they always have been loyal to rightful authority and have had the highest interests of the institution at heart. The class submit to the judgment of the people whether they have done right or wrong.

The Falcon on Her Way to Boston.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The Falcon steamed away from her wharf last evening. There are 17 in the crew, including officers and seamen. The first calling point is Boston, and after two days in that port she will proceed to Portland, Me., where she is due next Friday, and where Peary, his wife and Mrs. Cross of Brooklyn will join the party.

McClure Sentenced.

OMAHA, July 3.—Charles McClure, the leader of the gang that attempted to hold up the Missouri Pacific express at Westside, a suburb of Omaha, pleaded guilty to conspiring to obstruct and retard the passage of United States mails, and was sentenced to 15 years in the Sioux Falls penitentiary.

PUBLIC LAWS OF RHODE ISLAND.

Passed at the January Session, 1893.

CHAPTER 1,170.
(Passed April 25, 1893.)

AN ACT in Amendment of Chapter 163 of the Public Statutes, and Chapters 671, 939 and 980 of the Public Laws, Concerning Weights and Measures.

It is enacted by the General Assembly as follows:

SECTION 1. The weights, measures, and balances received from the United States and now in the custody of the state sealer, and such new weights, measures and balances as shall be received from the United States as standard weights, measures, and balances in addition to or in renewal thereof, shall be the authorized standards by which all town standards of weights and measures shall be tried, proved, and sealed.

SEC. 2. The governor shall appoint some suitable person to be state sealer of weights, measures, and balances, who shall be sworn to the faithful performance of his duty, and shall continue in office during the pleasure of the governor.

SEC. 3. The state sealer shall have exclusive custody and control of the standards so received by the state from the United States, which standards shall be kept in a suitable fire-proof place to be provided by the state. He shall have the oversight of all the standards furnished by the state to the various towns and cities, and shall keep a complete list of the same, and shall see that they are kept in good order and repair. He shall also keep the standards belonging to the state, furnished by the United States, in perfect order, and shall keep a complete list of the same, and shall take a receipt for the same from his successor in office. He shall receive for the care of the United States standards, for services in office, which shall be kept open at least two specified days in each week, and such other services as may be deemed necessary, a salary of $700 per year. He shall try, prove, and seal all town standards of weights, measures, and balances brought to him for that purpose, the compensation for which is hereinafter provided.

SEC. 4. The state sealer shall furnish a set of standards of weights, measures, and balances, at such cost as he may deem proper, to each city or town that, in his judgment, shall not have a suitable set, the same to be paid for by the state on the order of the state auditor on the general treasurer, the said set to consist as follows: 1 even balance of a capacity not less than 100 pounds; 1 brass yard gauge; 5 iron dry measures, one each of the following capacities: ½ bushel, 1 peck, ½ peck, 2 quarts, and 1 quart. 6 iron wine measures, one each of the following capacities: 1 gallon, ½ gallon, 1 quart, 1 pint, ½ pint, and 1 gill; 5 iron ring weights, avoirdupois standard, one each as follows: 50 lbs., 25 lbs., 20 lbs., 10 lbs., and 5 lbs.; 11 brass weights avoirdupois standard, one each as follows: 4 lbs., 2 lbs., 1 lb., 8 oz., 4 oz., 2 oz., 1 oz., ½ oz., ¼ oz., ⅛ oz., 1-16 oz.; together with a suitable case or cabinet to contain the same. He shall also furnish each town and city, at the expense of said town or city, a portable even balance scale with a set of weights and measures, to be used by the said town or city sealers in the discharge of their duties as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 5. The state sealer may, in the discharge of his duties, inspect the weights, measures, and balances of any person or persons, which are used for selling any goods, wares, merchandise, or other commodities, or for public weighing in any town or city in this state, and if he finds the same to be inaccurate, he shall forthwith inform the mayor of the city or the president of the town council, as the case may be, and such mayor or president shall at once call the attention of the town or city sealer thereto. The state sealer shall keep a record in detail of the towns and cities visited by him in the performance of his duties of the weights, measures, and balances tested and sealed by him; and he shall annually, during the first week in December, make a report to the governor of his doings for the year.

SEC. 6. Every town or city sealer shall, at the expense of his town or city, provide therein a suitable place for the safe keeping and preservation of the weights, measures, and balances furnished by the state, which shall all be used only as standards, and shall not be taken from the office. He shall have the care and oversight thereof; shall see that they are kept in good order and repair, and if any portion of them are lost, damaged, or destroyed, shall, at the expense of the town or city, replace the same by similar weights, measures, or balances. He shall procure, at the expense of his town or city, a suitable set of sealing stamps for stamping dry and wine measures, with the date of the year thereon, and, for coal and wood baskets, a branding iron, with letters not less than one-half inch high and the date of the year thereon.

SEC. 7. Every town or city sealer who neglects to provide a suitable place for keeping such weights, measures, and balances, or suffers any of them through his neglect to be lost, damaged, or destroyed, shall be fined the sum of not less than twenty or more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 8. Every town or city sealer shall, once at least in every three years, have the standard weights, measures, and balances in his custody tried, adjusted, and sealed by the state sealer, who shall receive as compensation therefor the sum of fifteen dollars, which sum, together with the necessary expenses incurred by him in so performing such service, shall be paid by the town or city to which such set of standards belong.

SEC. 9. Every town or city sealer shall annually, at the expense of his town or city, advertise or post up notifications in public places in different parts of his town or city, for every person engaged in the trade of buying and selling or as a public weigher, who uses weights and measures, to bring in, within a certain time in each notification limited, being not less than one month from the date of such notification, his weights, measures, balances, and scales, to be adjusted and sealed, and he shall forthwith adjust and seal all weights and measures brought to him for that purpose.

SEC. 10. Every town or city sealer shall go at least once in six months to every hay scale or platform scale or balance in his town or city, which cannot be readily removed, and try, adjust, and seal the same. After the expiration of the time limited in the notification which is required to be given in the preceding section, he shall visit the places of business of all persons who have weights, measures, and balances which ought to be sealed, and which have not been sealed within one year from the date of said notification, and may try, prove, and seal the same.

SEC. 11. For every neglect of duty prescribed in the next preceding section, the town or city sealer shall be fined a sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and every town or city sealer who shall seal any weight, measure, or balance otherwise than according to the town or city standard, duly tried, proved, and sealed by the state sealer, shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars.

SEC. 12. The sealer of weights and measures, in any town or city in which a different compensation shall not have been made by ordinance, shall receive a fee of 3 cents for every weight, wine or dry measure, sealed by him at his office; he shall receive a fee of 5 cents for every yard stick or yard measure sealed by him; and for sealing every spring balance of a capacity less than 100 pounds he shall receive a fee of 25 cents; for every spring balance of a capacity of 100 and less than 500 pounds, 50 cents; for every platform scale of a capacity of 5,000 pounds or more, $1; for every balance of a capacity of less than 5,000 pounds, 50 cents; for every steel-yard of capacity of 50 pounds or less, 25 cents; and for every steel-yard of a capacity over 50 pounds, 50 cents; every scale or balance used for weighing people shall be tested, and if found correct shall be sealed by the sealer, and he shall receive a fee of 50 cents for each and every scale or balance so sealed. If any of the said scales or balances are found to be incorrect, then they shall be condemned and their use forbidden as hereinbefore provided. For proving and sealing coal and wood baskets he shall receive a fee of 15 cents each, and for every charcoal basket so sealed, 20 cents; he shall also have a reasonable compensation for all repairs, alterations, and adjustments which it may be necessary for him to make, made by him, and for the expenses incurred in visiting any place, as provided for in section 10 of this Chapter. Such fees and compensation shall be paid to said sealer owning or using the weights, measures, or balances so adjusted and sealed. Every person violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense, one-half thereof to go to the town or city and one-half to the complainant.

SEC. 13. No person engaged in the trade of buying and selling shall have or permit to be kept at his place of business, or upon any cart, wagon, or other vehicle used by him in carrying on his business, any weight, measure, or balance of whatever description, which is not at the time duly sealed in accordance with this Chapter, or which, having been sealed, is no longer correct. If such weights, measures, or balances can be readily adjusted by such means as the sealer has at hand, he may adjust and seal them; but if they cannot be readily adjusted, he shall either seize such weights, measures, and balances forthwith and destroy them, or shall affix to the same a notice forbidding their use until he is satisfied that they have been so adjusted as to conform to the standards; and whoever removes said notice without the consent of the officer affixing the same shall, for each offence, be fined not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars, one-half to the town or city and one-half to the use of the complainant.

SEC. 14. Every person engaged in the trade of buying and selling, or as a public weigher, who shall use or permit to be used for him any weight, measure, or balance of whatever description, unless such weight, measure, or balance shall have been duly sealed in conformity with the provisions of this chapter, shall be fined the sum of twenty dollars, one-half thereof to the use of the town or city in which the offence shall have been committed and one-half thereof to the complainant.

SEC. 15. Every person who knowingly sells any commodity by weight or measure for a greater quantity than is actually delivered to the purchaser thereof, shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not exceeding three months.

SEC. 16. Every person who shall keep hay scales or platform balances for public use shall cause the same to be tried and sealed at least once in six months, by a sworn sealer of weights and measures.

SEC. 17. Every person who shall keep hay scales or platform balances for public use, or shall weigh or suffer to be weighed in such scales or balances any article of merchandise, unless such scales or balances shall have been tried and sealed as provided in the preceding section, shall be fined one hundred dollars.

SEC. 18. Whenever the owner or keeper of such hay scales or balances shall apply to the mayor of the city or president of the town council, as the case may be, or to any person by him appointed for the purpose, in any town or city in which the office of sealer of weights and measures shall from any cause be vacant, to try such scales or balances and to seal the same if found correct, such mayor, president, or person so appointed shall try such scales or balances, and seal the same if found correct; and in case of his neglect so to do, such owner or keeper shall be exempt from the fine prescribed in the next preceding section.

SEC. 19. The town councils of the several towns shall appoint one or more persons to be weighers of coal and other articles of merchandise, who shall be sworn, and be removable at the pleasure of the town councils appointing them, and shall receive such fees as may be fixed by the town councils of the several towns, which shall be paid by the seller: Provided, however, that the board of aldermen of any city shall appoint for such city a public weigher, who shall have the power to appoint under him such deputy weighers as said board of aldermen may approve, and for the official conduct of such deputies said public weigher shall be answerable. Said public weigher and deputy weighers shall be subject to such regulations as the city council of such city may establish, not repugnant to law. Said public weigher shall give a bond with sufficient sureties, satisfactory to said board of aldermen, to such city in the sum of two thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and he shall require each of said deputy weighers to give him a bond with sufficient sureties, which shall be satisfactory to said board of aldermen, in the sum of five hundred dollars, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office: Provided, that no person shall act as a public weigher of coal or other merchandise of which he is either the buyer or seller, or in the sale whereof he has any interest.

SEC. 20. Every person who shall sell coal or other merchandise without its first being weighed by a public weigher, when the same shall be demanded by the purchaser, and procuring a certificate of such weight for the purchaser, shall be fined twenty dollars for each offence.

SEC. 21. The sealers of the different towns and cities shall make an inventory of weights, measures and balances furnished by the State and the condition of the same, on a blank prepared for that purpose, in the month of October of each year, and shall forward the same to the state sealer of weights and measures.

SEC. 22. The different town councils of the several towns, and the board of aldermen of cities, may appoint, upon recommendation of their respective town or city sealers, one or more persons as deputy sealers of their town or city, who shall assist the said town or city sealer, and, in the absence from duty of such town or city sealer shall perform all the duties of town or city sealer as may be required of them for the time being.

SEC. 23. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 24. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

I certify the foregoing to be true copies.

MAKING GLASS.

Another Interesting Feature of the Exposition.

Visitors to the Midway Plaisance can See How all Manner of Costly and Cheap Glass is Manufactured by Skillful Workmen—The Work of Making Cut Glassware—Spinning Glass.

For some of the most interesting features of the Fair the enterprise of American manufacturers is to be given credit. On the Midway Plaisance, for instance, where there is an assemblage of savage life and strange peoples from all over the world, there is no more interesting exhibit than that made by a firm of glass blowers. They have erected here a complete plant, with steam engines, a great furnace, machinery of all sorts, and perhaps two hundred workmen and salesmen. Here they carry on the whole business of glass making, blowing, moulding, coloring, cutting. If one may judge by the popularity of the factory among the visitors to the Fair not many of our people have had the pleasure of seeing the glass making process. Great crowds are constantly passing in and out the doors. It is not a free show, either, though the admission fee is only ten cents, and this is refunded on the purchase price of any article you may wish to buy within. The proprietors say they charge even this small sum not for the sake of revenue, but to prevent their place being uncomfortably crowded, as would be the case if there were no admission fee whatever.

Entering this World's Fair glass factory you find yourself near the base of a big glass furnace. Through the little doors which the workmen open now and then you may see the mass of molten glass within, red and glowing. One of the blowers sticks his tube through the open door, worms it around in there for a moment, and withdraws it with a small quantity of molten metal adhering to the end. He lifts this in the air, blows through the tube with his lungs, and inflates the mass of molten stuff to a globule. By rolling it upon a hard, smooth surface he causes the bulb to assume any form he wishes, an electric light globe, a tumbler, a vase, a saucer, a flower holder. He adorns it with glass of various colors, which is wound upon his globe much as a cord is wound on a bobbin in a spinning machine. He fashions the exterior of his bulb in various forms by rolling it along patterns. The whole process is so simply and quickly done, the glowing mass of glass being handled as if it were plaster or clay, that one is amazed.

The cheaper line of work is going on at the same time near by. This is what is known as pressed glass. One man reaches into the furnace with a long tube, extracts a small quantity of metal, plunges it into a mould, another man cutting off the superfluous portion with a pair of scissors, a lever is pulled and the piston of the mould comes down, pressing the glass into the shape of a butter dish or cream pitcher. In a trice the bit of molten stuff has been converted into a dish that is almost perfect. A little finishing, a bit of polishing, done also by machinery, will make it ready for the market; and when it is done it will be a thing of beauty, bright and glistening, almost as clear and fine as cut glass itself, and yet very cheap. This is but one of an almost infinite variety of methods by which modern manufacturers produce the most beautiful articles at prices within the reach of the multitude.

The bowls, pitchers and glasses which are to be decorated by hand are produced in the same way, though of finer material and more careful workmanship. The beauty of cut glass consists not so much in the quality of the material as in the exquisite nature of the work put upon it. In this World's Fair glass factory you may see glass cutting in all its phases. A dozen or more young men before emery wheels working by steam power, with streams of water trickling down upon the peripheries, grinding and cutting the surfaces of the glass dishes according to the patterns which have been chalked upon them in the pattern room. To produce a perfect cut glass rose bowl of medium size one young man will work for a week or more, and thus you may see why it is that cut glassware costs so much money. He must grind and grind, cut and cut, hour after hour to produce the almost innumerable prisms which reflect the rays of light like a diamond and make this product of the glass blower's art like the finest precious stones.

There are single pieces of cut glass in this exhibit which represent a month's hard work by the most skillful of mechanics in the grinding and polishing alone, and perhaps two weeks more of work in superintendence, inspection, finishing and assistance. The result of all this effort is glorious, and costly.

Some of the most beautiful souvenirs of the Exposition are made in glass. All sorts of articles have pictures of the principal Exposition buildings within them in delicate lines. On some you may have your name engraved while you wait. These engraved souvenirs are very popular, and large numbers of them are sold every day.

But the most wonderful thing in the show is the glass fabric. One of the workmen in this concern discovered some time ago that he could spin glass into threads of even size and texture just as wool or cotton is spun. He talked to the proprietor about it, and the result was that the firm decided to make a specialty of spun glass articles in case they could find sale for them. They began in a modest way, but their wares, on account of novelty as well as beauty, have attained such popularity that glass spinning is now an important feature of the business. It would be difficult to imagine anything more dazzling and curious than this process. The molten glass is spun out into a long thread by the rotation of a spindle, and on being cooled is wound around a bobbin precisely as one would wind yarn, though of course the diameter of the spool is pretty large. The makers say the glass spins out in very even thickness, and runs surprisingly "true." From the spinning it goes to the loom. One girl cuts the threads into the proper lengths and inspects them for faults. Another operates the loom. Each glass thread is laid in by hand, and a careful movement of the machine pushes it to its place in the fabric. Then another thread is put in, and so thread by thread the metal textile grows. It is slow work, a nimble-fingered girl, with one assistant, being able to make but a quarter of a yard of glass cloth in a day.

Naturally glass cloth is expensive. Sixty dollars a yard is the present price, and it is easy to figure out from this basis what the value of a dress pattern would be. The firm is now making a glass gown for Princess Eulalia, who saw some of the fabric and the method of making it a few weeks ago, during

THE ARTILLERY AT CHURCH.

The Newport Artillery, Lieutenant Colonel Barker commanding, turned out in full ranks Sunday evening, to attend divine service at the First Baptist Church, where the pastor, Rev. W. F. Arrington, preached a special sermon appropriate to the Fourth of July. The Artillery occupied seats in the body of the church, and the remainder of the audience room was well filled. The services opened with an anthem by the choir, after which "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Hail Columbia" were sung by the choir, the audience joining in the choruses. All then joined in singing "America" and, after prayer, the pastor preached the sermon, taking his text from Ecclesiastes iii:8—"A time of war, and a time of peace."

Peace is the fruitage of war. The calm, in order not to be ominous, must follow the tempest. It is quite customary for many to think that peace is the normal condition, and that carnal warfare is all there is of war. These views are both erroneous. Rest is not the normal condition of human affairs. Upon the character of man is impressed the nature of conflict and endless activity. Calm is characteristic of death rather than of life, and no ultimate peace is to be expected on this earth. The religion we profess extends promises of endless conflict. Christ continually urged upon the world the necessity of constant conflict. This statement is no endorsement of war, as many regard war, the striving after personal ends by the needless shedding of blood. There have been more conflicts in the world since Christianity began than ever before. There must be continual conflict in behalf of Christianity. War, as treated here, is a conflict that has a legitimate object. Peace would be ignoble if conflicts, to secure that peace, were unnecessary. So long as there are wrongs to be righted, so long as there is oppression to be checked, so long as the hirelings are oppressed in their wage-earnings, so long must warfare be continued. On the pages of history there are names which stand out prominently for their efforts for honor and justice, names which are honored for conflicts; not for piracy and plunder, not for the willing shedding of blood, but for their unwillingness to shed an unnecessary drop of blood. War in its highest sense is not unnecessary, not cruel. What would have been the effect upon civilization had there been no Marathon, no Thermopylae, no battles in the Swiss cantons, no Waterloo, no Bunker Hill, no Gettysburg, or no New Orleans?

War must always be carnal. Like other exercises, the methods and motives of warfare have steadily improved; rules and codes have been adopted, and every effort made to lessen the deadly effect of war. In our day, while the means of warfare have been steadily improved, there has been a constantly growing desire for peace. Peace congresses are familiar institutions and courts of arbitration have secured peace. There are symptoms everywhere of a dawn of universal peace. The vast standing armies, although ready for war, are awaiting the order to disband and disarm. Their very presence is helping the coming of the great day of peace. Warfare does not pay unless it takes the place of a shameful peace. The recent naval review, when the war vessels of the leading nations of the world gathered in New York harbor to do honor to the American republic, and all in unison belched forth from their monster guns a tribute to the chief executive of the United States, was a striking indication of the dawn of peace, and may be regarded as the token of a jubilee when all nations shall be at peace. One thing is certain, that we are on the verge of new conditions. Industry has already taken the first place, and today there are more men employed in industrial pursuits than in all the standing armies of the world.

The presence in every state of militia companies is an encouraging sign. While they are drilled in military tactics, to be ready for war, they are really peace organizations. The better drilled men are, the better are they able to preserve peace. Military discipline in our schools and colleges is valuable more for peace than for war; it trains the youth of our country for peaceful pursuits. All this organization may be applied by the enlightenment of man to the extension of the influence of Christianity. What a grand employment for the military companies it would be, if their efforts were directed to the spreading of the gospel of Christ; if all the benefits of our civilization could be given to the pagans. The time is perhaps not yet come, but there is an inception of such a plan in the formation of societies of missionary workers. Among all the races of the world, the Anglo-Saxon is the best fitted for aggressive conflict, the best fitted to carry on the greatest works and the greatest enterprises. The Jewish, Grecian and Roman people had their place in building up the civilization of the world, and it may be that the great Anglo-Saxon race is to be the power to carry the highest civilization to all the world. It is a race admirably equipped to upbuild all the forces that go to make a new and enlightened humanity. Christ has given to our race the grandest privilege ever offered to any people, to carry on the work of the gospel and to uplift the nations. The Newport Artillery, with its honorable record, has before it an opportunity to do nobler deeds in the cause of Christ. Let your ideal be the cross of Christ; bend all your energies, not to death and destruction, but to bringing about, in the highest degree, the reign of the Prince of Peace.

CLUBHOUSE AT CEDARHURST BURNED

The clubhouse of the Rockaway Club at Cedarhurst, Long Island, was burned to the ground Saturday. The fire was discovered at 7.30 o'clock, while the few members in the house were dressing for breakfast. Scarcely had smoke been detected before the flames shot up over the wooden balcony outside. The fire began in a corner of the ground floor near the steward's apartments. It spread very rapidly and in five minutes the whole house was ablaze. Five fire companies with engines were summoned, but failing to find available water on the premises they were of little help, and in less than half an hour the whole building was burned to the ground. Only the basement and the chimneys of brick remained standing. The stables, which stood at a distance of a hundred yards, were unharmed. Two or three of the members in the building had rather narrow escapes.

So rapidly did the fire spread that scarcely any of the contents were saved. All the club records, which had hastily been put into a trunk and dragged out to the verandah, were burned. All the silver polo cups, the trophies of the club, likewise, were lost, among them the $1,000 Alden challenge cup, which was to be contested for the last time today. A promenade concert, to which five hundred invitations had been issued, was to have followed the match.

The loss is estimated at about $50,000, which is partly covered by an insurance of $30,000. If the insurance is promptly paid, it is expected that a new clubhouse will be built on the spot at once.

Captain R. H. J. Blake, the superintendent of the club, who was in Newport making arrangements for the opening of the polo season of the Westchester club, lost everything. He resided at the club, occupying rooms which he had fitted up himself. All his valuable collection of medals, stars, curios and mementoes, including personal relics of the Crimean and Sepoy wars, were destroyed.

A DREAM.

I dreamt that over the winter world
The winter winds were sighing,
And into the orioles' empty nests
The flakes of snow were flying.
The vines along the garden wall
With crystal ice were gleaming,
And in the garden, dull and bare,
The summer flowers were dreaming.
The snow lay deep over withered grass,
The skies were cold and gray,
And slowly the dreary night came on
To end the weary day.

I woke. High up in the orchard boughs
A hundred birds were singing,
And in the birch trees' pleasant shade
The orioles' nests were swinging.
Along the river, tall and green
I saw the rushes growing,
And daisy petals white as snow
Among the grasses showing.
The flowers held the sunshine bright,
The breezes were at play,
And swiftly the dreamy night came on
To end the happy day.

THAT EXTRA SESSION.

Deadlocks Likely to Cause Complications.

Bitter Fight Expected Before the Senate Settles Down.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The fact that the senators from the northwestern states are not unanimous on the silver question, and that some of them will probably vote to repeal the Sherman silver purchasing law, seems to lend an added interest to the contests which were pending when the senate adjourned in extra session in April last in the case of the senators from Montana, Wisconsin and Washington. In all three of these states the legislatures got into a prolonged deadlock and adjourned without electing a senator to fill the vacancies that were to occur on March 4. The governor of Montana appointed Lee Mantle, a Republican, but a pronounced free coinage advocate, to succeed Wilbur F. Sanders (Rep.) Mr. Mantle's credentials were referred to the committee on privileges and elections, which in favor of seating the appointee, but the senate adjourned without action on his case and the seat remains vacant. The legislature of the state is controlled by Democrats and Populists, and the governor is a Republican. Should the Republican appointee of the governor be not seated the legislature would probably choose a Democrat or a Populist. Governor Richards of Montana was in Washington recently, and he declared very enthusiastically that he would not call the legislature together again if Mantle was refused a seat.

Made a Majority Report

In Wyoming the legislature has a Democratic and Populist majority, but

Failed to Elect a Senator.

The governor, a Fusionist, appointed A. C. Beckwith, a free coinage Fusionist. His credentials were also before the senate committee without action when the senate adjourned.

In Washington state the legislature and governor both are Republicans, but the legislature failed on account of local fights to elect a successor to John B. Allen, republican, and the governor appointed him to succeed himself. His case was pending when the senate adjourned. Mr. Allen, it was thought, would vote for the repeal of the Sherman law if admitted to his seat. These three cases will probably bring on a bitter and protracted preliminary fight before the senate can settle down to the business for which the extra session was convened. The right of a senator to his seat is a question of the highest privilege, and senators on one side or the other of the silver question are sure to demand a decision on these cases before any vote is taken on the Sherman law.

CROP REPORT.

The General Conditions Excellent, as Reported From the West and Northwest.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The World published this morning a detailed report of the condition on July 1 of the crops in the western and northwestern states, the Pacific slope, Canada and Manitoba. The report shows that the wheat crop will be much below the average; that the corn crop will be enormous, and if the weather conditions continue good, will probably be the largest ever raised; that the acreage of oats, barley, rye and similar grains has increased and that the crop will be large; that the hay crop is everywhere above the average; that the general condition of the agricultural section is excellent.

What England Thinks of Cleveland's Call.

LONDON, July 3.—The Times is the only morning newspaper that comments on President Cleveland's call for a special session. It says editorially: Among all interested in sound finance and steady markets for securities, there is but one feeling of satisfaction at the return, belated, of the United States to a sound monetary policy. The Sherman act is one of the unwise laws mentioned in the president's proclamation.

Socialist Labor Party Convention.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The eighth convention of the socialist labor party of the United States was begun in Rochester hall yesterday. Delegates from various parts of the United States were present to take part in the opening meeting. The session occupied the entire morning, and in the afternoon a majority of delegates went to Waldheim cemetery to visit the graves of the anarchists.

Spurgeon's Son at Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, July 3.—In the Hanson Place Baptist church a royal welcome was extended yesterday to Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, son of the late Charles Spurgeon, the famous London preacher. He has been preaching in New Zealand for 16 years, and is now on his way home to London to take his father's pulpit in the London Tabernacle, where he will preach for the next year.

Three Boys Drowned While Bathing.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—Three lads were drowned in the Delaware while bathing yesterday. The victims are Jerry Triddle, aged 16, Milton Hammet, of the same age, and Arthur Sentz, aged 14. The latter two were together. All were diving from boats and were seized with cramps. One body has been recovered.

Fatal Collapse of a Bridge.

TROY, N. Y., July 3.—A footbridge over the canal at Colnes collapsed yesterday while William Fryer, John Whittaker and two companions were crossing. Fryer and Whittaker were drowned. Their bodies were recovered.

ANGRY MISSOURI OFFICIALS.

The Governor and Ex-County Recorder in a Personal Encounter.

NEVADA, Mo., July 3.—A personal encounter took place at the Hotel Mitchell Saturday between Governor William J. Stone and A. J. King, ex-county recorder. Governor Stone has been called here as a witness in the case of the state, ex-rel Vernon county, against A. J. King, for retaining official fees. Governor Stone had been attorney for the county in the collecting of the amounts prior to his election as governor.

Saturday night Governor Stone was seated in the hotel office writing. King came in and took a seat, and adjourning his remarks to Congressman Morgan, asked if he had heard his testimony before Referee Casey. Mr. Morgan said he had not. "Well, I told the truth," continued King, "but Stone told a —— lie."

The governor felt that the remark was intended for his ear, and, smarting under the intended insult, he quickly rose from the table and taking the crutch used by Frank P. Anderson, who was seated near by, made a dash for King, who warded off the blow with his arm and umbrella. The next moment they were grappling together, but were quickly separated. The umbrella, which saved King's head, was broken in pieces.

NOT ROOM TO TURN.

Admiral Markham's Report of the Victoria Disaster.

LONDON, July 3.—A midshipman from the Victoria arrived at Calais yesterday, with Rear Admiral Markham's dispatches concerning the collision off Tripoli. He was brought by special steamer to Dover and was conveyed thence by special train to London. He drove directly to the admiralty office, where the admiralty board, notified in advance of his coming, received and read the dispatches at once. The board decided to publish the dispatches in full forthwith. The first dispatch was dated from the warship Camperdown, on June 22. It says:

"It is with the most profound regret that I have to report the total loss of her majesty's ship Victoria, involving the loss of the commander-in-chief, Vice Admiral Sir George Tryon, 22 officers and 330 men, under the following circumstances: The squadron, consisting of her majesty's ships Victoria, Camperdown, Nile, Dreadnaught, Inflexible, Collingwood, Phaeton, Edinburgh, Sanspareil, Edgar, Amphrion, Fearless and Barham, left Beyrout about 10 o'clock this forenoon for Tripoli. Shortly after, the squadron formed single column line abreast and proceeded at the Rate of Eight Knots Per Hour.

"When five miles from the anchorage off Tripoli the signal was made at 2:20 in the afternoon to form columns of divisions in line ahead, disposed beam to port—the columns to be columns to be six cable lengths apart. We proceeded in this formation until 3:28, when the signal was given from the Victoria to the first division to turn 16 points to port and to the second division to turn 16 points to starboard.

"As the columns were only six cable-lengths apart it was not thought in my opinion within the maneuvring distance to execute such an evolution. I directed the flag lieutenants to keep the signal, which we were repeating at dip as an indication that the signal from the Victoria was not understood. I then directed them to signal with the semaphore, 'Do I understand it a wish for the columns to turn as indicated by the signal now flying?' But before my order could be carried out the commander-in-chief semaphored to me to know what I was waiting for.

"It then struck me that he wished me to turn 16 points, as indicated by the signal, and it was his intention to circle round beyond division, leaving them on the port hand. Having the fullest confidence in the great ability of the commander to maneuver the squadron without even risk of collision, I ordered the signal hoisted as

An Indication That I Understood.

"When the signal was hauled down the helm of the Camperdown was put hard aport. As the two ships turned toward each other, and, seeing the helm of the Victoria was still half-starboard, I directed the captain of the Camperdown to go full speed astern with the starboard screw, in order to decrease our circle of turning. Seeing that a collision was inevitable, I then ordered him to go full speed astern with both engines, but before the speed could be materially communicated the stem of the Camperdown struck the Victoria on the starboard bow, about 20 feet before the turret, and crushed into the ship almost to the center line.

"Seeing the critical condition of the Victoria, which seemed to be settling down towards the head, boats were immediately prepared for the rescue, when the open pennant was hoisted by the Victoria and the signal was made not to send boats. A few minutes later she keeled over to starboard and,

Turning Bottom Upward, Disappeared.

Hon. Maurice A. Bourke, the captain of the Victoria, sends to the admiralty a letter dated H. M. S. Nile, June 25. After a technical preface detailing the vessel's course, the writer continues:

"Shortly after 2 p. m., the commander said he should form the fleet into two divisions disposed to port, columns six cables apart, and when sufficiently past the line of bearing he would invert lines by turning columns inward 16 points, bringing the columns of divisions in the abreast to port. The staff commander suggested eight cables would be a better distance to form up in two divisions than six. The admiral said: 'Yes, it should be eight cables.'

"The chief commander went on deck and about 2:15 his signal was made for the fleet to form column of division in line ahead, columns disposed abeam to port, columns six cables apart. The staff commander then went to the admiral to say that six cables were flying and he had said eight cables. It

Was In the Admiral's Cabin.

The admiral said it was to remain at six cables.

"When the signal was ordered to be hoisted for the first division to alter the course 16 points to starboard I directed Lanyon, a midshipman, to observe closely the distance of the Camperdown. He reported to the commander that it should be too close, and asked permission to reverse the port screw. This was done, and just before the collision both engines were going at full speed astern.

"The ship had turned 12 or 13 points when the Camperdown struck the Victoria on the starboard bow, about 10 feet abaft the anchor."

Sandow Horsewhipped by a Water Queen.

NEW YORK, July 3.—"Lurline," the water queen who horsewhipped Sandow, the strong man, Saturday night, was arraigned in court yesterday and held in $500 bail for examination on a charge of assault. She was bailed out. Sandow said he had a number of blackmailing letters from "Lurline," but could not produce them then as they were locked up in his trunks that had gone on to Boston.

TILLMAN'S LIQUOR LAW.

Threats Made Against the Governor's Life and a Great Boom in the Jug Business.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 3.—The operation of the new liquor law, which makes the state the dispenser of drinking fluids, was begun in the midst of some trepidation on the part of the governor, his feeling in this respect being due to certain threats which came to him relative to his own safety. In view of these circumstances, Governor Tillman had the executive mansion guarded Friday night. There were no new developments, and the rumors could not be traced to any authentic source. As a result of the law there has been a sudden movement in the jug business, these articles being seen at many railway stations, bearing all sorts of labels. A number of saloons still keep their liquor on hand, and almost all the drug stores are charged with violating the law.

The gross receipts of the state barrooms throughout the state are said to be ridiculously small, and very few dispensaries have been opened.

THE NATION'S HEROES.

New York Dedicates Her Gettysburg Monument With Impressive Ceremonies.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 3.—With bright sunlight above and the fields on which Gettysburg's battle was fought stretching out below, New York state's handsome monument to the heroes who fell in the fight was dedicated yesterday with impressive ceremonies. It was the great day of the celebration of their 30th anniversary of the three days' fight. Seven thousand New York veterans, the governors of two states, the surviving generals of the battle and thousands of veterans and visitors from other states, were present to lend impressiveness and moment to the scene, and this day will go down in history as one of the greatest at Gettysburg since its battlefields run red with the blood of the confederate and union dead.

Graves Makes a Personal Appeal.

DENVER, July 3.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves made a personal appeal to Judge Burns to be admitted to bail in the sum of $20,000. He said he wished to return to Providence to close up his affairs and provide for his mother's comfort. District Attorney Steele resisted the application, saying the unwritten law of the court demanded $30,000 bail. This amount Dr. Graves' attorney said it would be impossible to furnish, and the doctor was taken back to jail much downcast.

Released Anarchist Attend a Meeting.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Samuel Fielden, Michael Schwab and Oscar Neebe made their first appearance at a public meeting since their release from Joliet, at Zeph's hall Saturday evening. The occasion was the celebration of the German festival of Commers by Brewers' Union No. 18. Neebe was one of the organizers of the union and he and the other two were the guests of the evening. The three men took no part in the proceedings.

A Wholesale Embezzler.

DALLAS, July 3.—T. J. Wood, late cashier of the Ninth National bank of Dallas, was arrested on indictments found by the United States grand jury, charging him with embezzling $220,000 of the money funds and credits of the bank and with making false reports to the comptroller of the currency. He is also charged with embezzling $20,000 of the funds of the First National bank of Rockwell, Tex., as its agent.

Ex-President of Nicaragua Coming.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Dr. Don Roberto Sacasa, the ex-president of Nicaragua, is coming to the United States and will arrive on the Pacific mail steamship due here on the 6th inst. from Panama. He is accompanied by his wife and proposes making a tour of the United States and perhaps a visit to Europe before returning to Nicaragua.

Confederate Reunion Postponed.

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—Adjutant General Gorman announces that the reunion of Confederate veterans, set for Birmingham, Ala., July 19 and 20, and General Underwood's excursion of the northern prisoners to the World's fair and unveiling at Chicago, have been postponed until Friday and Saturday, Sept. 15 and 16.

A Shady Real Estate Transaction.

CHEYENNE, Wis., July 3.—A real estate swindle has just developed here in which the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York has been defrauded of $44,078. A. M. Whitney, acting as the special agent in 1891, purchased 546 acres of land adjoining the city of Cheyenne as an investment for the company, representing that he paid $90,900 for the property. S. B. Newton, the special agent for the company in Chicago, has just ascertained that Whitney actually paid but $46,822 for the land.

Students Appeal to the People.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 3.—The state normal school graduating class, which was refused graduation because the members would not retract statements made regarding the board of trustees and President Parsons, have issued a long address to the people, in which they maintain they always have been loyal to rightful authority and have had the highest interests of the institution at heart. The class submit to the judgment of the people whether they have done right or wrong.

The Falcon on Her Way to Boston.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The Falcon steamed away from her wharf last evening. There are 17 in the crew, including officers and seamen. The first calling point is Boston, and after two days in that port she will proceed to Portland, Me., where she is due next Friday, and where Peary, his wife and Mrs. Cross of Brooklyn will join the party.

McClure Sentenced.

OMAHA, July 3.—Charles McClure, the leader of the gang that attempted to hold up the Missouri Pacific express at Westside, a suburb of Omaha, pleaded guilty to conspiring to obstruct and retard the passage of United States mails, and was sentenced to 15 years in the Sioux Falls penitentiary.

PUBLIC LAWS OF RHODE ISLAND.

Passed at the January Session, 1893.

CHAPTER 1,178.
(Passed April 28, 1893.)

AN ACT in Amendment of Chapter 148 of the Public Statutes, and Chapters 671, 928 and 960 of the Public Laws, Concerning Weights and Measures.

It is enacted by the General Assembly as follows:

SECTION 1. The weights, measures, and balances received from the United States and now in the custody of the state sealer, and such new weights, measures and balances as shall be received from the United States as standard weights, measures, and balances in addition to or in renewal thereof, shall be the authorized standards by which all town standards of weights and measures shall be tried, proved, and sealed.

SEC. 2. The governor shall appoint some suitable person to be state sealer of weights, measures, and balances, who shall be sworn to the faithful performance of his duty, and shall continue in office during the pleasure of the governor.

SEC. 3. The state sealer shall have exclusive custody and control of the standards so received by the state from the United States, which standards shall be kept in a suitable fire-proof place to be provided by the state. He shall have the oversight of all the standards furnished by the state to the various towns and cities, and shall keep a complete list of the same, and shall see that they are kept in good order and repair. He shall also keep the standards belonging to the state, furnished by the United States, in perfect order, and shall keep a complete list of the same, and shall take a receipt for the same from his successor in office. He shall receive for the care of the United States standards, for services in office, which shall be kept open at least two specified days in each week, and such other services as may be deemed necessary, a salary of $500 per year. He shall try, prove, and seal all town standards of weights, measures, and balances brought to him for that purpose, the compensation for which is hereinafter provided.

SEC. 4. The state sealer shall furnish a set of standards of weights, measures, and balances, at such cost as he may deem proper, to each city or town that, in his judgment, shall not have a suitable set, the same to be paid for by the state on the order of the state auditor on the general treasurer, the said set to consist as follows: 1 even balance of a capacity not less than 100 pounds; 1 brass yard gauge; 5 iron dry measures, one each of the following capacities, ½ bushel, 1 peck, ½ peck, 2 quarts, and 1 quart. 6 iron wine measures, one each of the following capacities: 1 gallon, ½ gallon, 1 quart, 1 pint, ½ pint, and ¼ gill; 5 iron ring weights, avoirdupois standard, one each as follows: 50 lbs., 25 lbs., 10 lbs., and 5 lbs.; 11 brass weights avoirdupois standard, one each as follows: 4 lbs., 2 lbs., 1 lb., 8 oz., 4 oz., 1 oz., ½ oz., ¼ oz., ⅛ oz., 1-16 oz.; together with a suitable case or cabinet to contain the same. He shall also furnish each town and city, at the expense of said town or city, a portable even balance scale with a set of weights and measures, to be used by the said town or city sealers in the discharge of their duties as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 5. The state sealer may, in the discharge of his duties, inspect the weights, measures, and balances of any person or persons, which are used for selling any goods, wares, merchandise, or other commodities, or for public weighing in any town or city in this state, and if he finds the same to be inaccurate, he shall forthwith inform the mayor of the city or the president of the town council, as the case may be, and such mayor or president shall at once call the attention of the town or city sealer thereto. The state sealer shall keep a record in detail of the towns and cities visited by him in the performance of his duties; of the weights, measures, and balances tested and sealed by him; and he shall annually, during the first week in December, make a report to the governor of his doings for the year.

SEC. 6. Every town or city sealer shall, at the expense of his town or city, provide therein a suitable place for the safe keeping and preservation of the weights, measures, and balances furnished by the state, which shall all be used only as standards, and shall not be taken from the office. He shall have the care and oversight thereof; shall see that they are kept in good order and repair, and if any portion of them are lost, damaged, or destroyed, shall, at the expense of the town or city, replace the same by similar weights, measures, or balances. He shall procure, at the expense of his town or city, a suitable set of sealing stamps for stamping dry and wine measures, with the date of the year thereon, and, for coal and wood baskets, a branding iron, with letters not less than one-half inch high and the date of the year thereon.

SEC. 7. Every town or city sealer who neglects to provide a suitable place for keeping such weights, measures, and balances, or suffers any of them through his neglect to be lost, damaged, or destroyed, shall be fined the sum of not less than twenty or more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 8. Every town or city sealer shall, once at least in every three years, have the standard weights, measures, and balances in his custody tried, adjusted, and sealed by the state sealer, who shall receive as compensation therefor the sum of fifteen dollars, which sum, together with the necessary expenses incurred by him in so performing such service, shall be paid by the town or city to which such set of standards belong.

SEC. 9. Every town or city sealer shall annually, at the expense of his town or city, advertise or post up notifications in public places in different parts of his town or city, for every person engaged in the trade of buying and selling or as a public weigher, who uses weights and measures, to bring in, within a certain time in each notification limited, being not less than one month from the date of such notification, his weights, measures, balances, and scales, to be adjusted and sealed, and he shall forthwith adjust and seal all weights and measures brought to him for that purpose.

SEC. 10. Every town or city sealer shall go at least once in six months to every hay scale or platform scale or balance in his town or city, which cannot be readily removed, and try, adjust, and seal the same. After the expiration of the time limited in the notification which is required to be given in the preceding section, he shall visit the places of business of all persons who have weights, measures, and balances which ought to be sealed, and which have not been sealed within one year from the date of said notification, and may try, prove, and seal the same.

SEC. 11. For every neglect of duty prescribed in the next preceding section, the town or city sealer shall be fined a sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and every town or city sealer who shall seal any weight, measure, or balance otherwise than according to the town or city standard, duly tried, proved, and sealed by the state sealer, shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars.

SEC. 12. The sealer of weights and measures, in any town or city in which a different compensation shall not have been made by ordinance, shall receive a fee of 3 cents for every weight, wine or dry measure, sealed by him at his office; he shall receive a fee of 5 cents for every yard stick or yard measure sealed by him; and for sealing every spring balance of a capacity less than 100 pounds he shall receive a fee of 25 cents; for every spring balance of a capacity of 100 and less than 500 pounds, 50 cents; for every platform scale of a capacity of 5,000 pounds or more, $1; for every balance of a capacity of less than 5,000 pounds, 50 cents; for every steel-yard of capacity of 50 pounds or less, 25 cents; and for every steel-yard of a capacity over 50 pounds, 50 cents; every scale or balance used for weighing people shall be tested, and if found correct shall be sealed by the sealer, and he shall receive a fee of 50 cents for each and every scale or balance so sealed. If any of the said scales or balances are found to be incorrect, then they shall be condemned and their use forbidden as hereinbefore provided. For proving and sealing coal and wood baskets he shall receive a fee of 15 cents each, and for every charcoal basket so sealed, 20 cents; he shall also have a reasonable compensation for all repairs, alterations, and adjustments which it may be necessary for him to make, made by him, and for the expenses incurred in visiting any place, as provided for in section 10 of this Chapter. Such fees and compensation shall be paid to said sealer owning or using the weights, measures, or balances so adjusted and sealed. Every person violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense, one-half thereof to go to the town or city and one-half to the complainant.

SEC. 13. No person engaged in the trade of buying and selling shall have or permit to be kept at his place of business, or upon any cart, wagon, or other vehicle used by him in carrying on his business, any weight, measure, or balance of whatever description, which is not at the time duly sealed in accordance with this Chapter, or which, having been sealed, is no longer correct. If such weights, measures, or balances can be readily adjusted by such means as the sealer has at hand, he may adjust and seal them; but if they cannot be readily adjusted, he shall either seize such weights, measures, and balances forthwith and destroy them, or shall affix to the same a notice forbidding their use until he is satisfied that they have been so adjusted as to conform to the standards; and whoever removes said notice without the consent of the officer affixing the same shall, for each offence, be fined not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars, one-half to the town or city and one-half to the use of the complainant.

SEC. 14. Every person engaged in the trade of buying and selling, or as a public weigher, who shall use or permit to be used for him any weight, measure, or balance of whatever description, unless such weight, measure, or balance shall have been duly sealed in conformity with the provisions of this chapter, shall be fined the sum of twenty dollars, one-half thereof to the use of the town or city in which the offence shall have been committed and one-half thereof to the complainant.

SEC. 15. Every person who knowingly sells any commodity by weight or measure for a greater quantity than is actually delivered to the purchaser thereof, shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not exceeding three months.

SEC. 16. Every person who shall keep hay scales or platform balances for public use shall cause the same to be tried and sealed at least once in six months, by a sworn sealer of weights and measures.

SEC. 17. Every person who shall keep hay scales or platform balances for public use, or shall weigh or suffer to be weighed in such scales or balances any article of merchandise, unless such scales or balances shall have been tried and sealed as provided in the preceding section, shall be fined one hundred dollars.

SEC. 18. Whenever the owner or keeper of such hay scales or balances shall apply to the mayor of the city or president of the town council, as the case may be, or to any person by him appointed for the purpose, in any town or city in which the office of sealer of weights and measures shall from any cause be vacant, to try such scales or balances and to seal the same if found correct, such mayor, president, or person so appointed shall try such scales or balances, and seal the same if found correct; and in case of his neglect so to do, such owner or keeper shall be exempt from the fine prescribed in the next preceding section.

SEC. 19. The town councils of the several towns shall appoint one or more persons to be weighers of coal and other articles of merchandise, who shall be sworn, and be removable at the pleasure of the town councils appointing them, and shall receive such fees as may be fixed by the town councils of the several towns, which shall be paid by the seller: Provided, however, that the board of aldermen of any city shall appoint for such city a public weigher, who shall have the power to appoint under him such deputy weighers as said board of aldermen may approve, and for the official conduct of such deputies said public weigher shall be answerable. Said public weigher and deputy weighers shall be subject to such regulations as the city council of such city may establish, not repugnant to law. Said public weigher shall give a bond with sufficient sureties, satisfactory to said board of aldermen, to such city in the sum of two thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and he shall require each of said deputy weighers to give him a bond with sufficient sureties, which shall be satisfactory to said board of aldermen, in the sum of five hundred dollars, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office: Provided, that no person shall act as a public weigher of coal or other merchandise of which he is either the buyer or seller, or in the sale whereof he has any interest.

SEC. 20. Every person who shall sell coal or other merchandise without its first being weighed by a public weigher, when the same shall be demanded by the purchaser, and procuring a certificate of such weight for the purchaser, shall be fined twenty dollars for each offence.

SEC. 21. The sealers of the different towns and cities shall make an inventory of weights, measures and balances furnished by the State and the condition of the same, on a blank prepared for that purpose, in the month of October of each year, and shall forward the same to the state sealer of weights and measures.

SEC. 22. The different town councils of the several towns, and the board of aldermen of cities, may appoint, upon recommendation of their respective town or city sealers, one or more persons as deputy sealers of their town or city, who shall assist the said town or city sealer, and, in the absence from duty of such town or city sealer shall perform all the duties of town or city sealer as may be required of them for the time being.

SEC. 23. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 24. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

I certify the foregoing to be true copies.

MAKING GLASS.

Another Interesting Feature of the Exposition.

Visitors to the Midway Plaisance can See How all Manner of Costly and Cheap Glass is Manufactured by Skillful Workmen—The Work of Making Cut Glassware—Spinning Glass.

For some of the most interesting features of the Fair the enterprise of American manufacturers is to be given credit. On the Midway Plaisance, for instance, where there is an assemblage of savage life and strange peoples from all over the world, there is no more interesting exhibit than that made by a firm of glass blowers. They have erected here a complete plant, with steam engines, a great furnace, machinery of all sorts, and perhaps two hundred workmen and salesmen. Here they carry on the whole business of glass making, blowing, moulding, coloring, cutting. If one may judge by the popularity of the factory among the visitors to the Fair not many of our people have had the pleasure of seeing the glass making process. Great crowds are constantly passing in and out the doors. It is not a free show, either, though the admission fee is only ten cents, and this is refunded on the purchase price of any article you may wish to buy within. The proprietors say they charge even this small sum not for the sake of revenue, but to prevent their place being uncomfortably crowded, as would be the case if there were no admission fee whatever.

Entering this World's Fair glass factory you find yourself near the base of a big glass furnace. Through the little doors which the workmen open now and then you may see the mass of molten glass within, red and glowing. One of the blowers sticks his tube through the open door, worms it around in there for a moment, and withdraws it with a small quantity of molten metal adhering to the end. He lifts this in the air, blows through the tube with his lungs, and inflates the mass of molten stuff to a globule. By rolling it upon a hard, smooth surface he causes the bulb to assume any form he wishes, an electric light globe, a tumbler, a vase, a saucer, a flower holder. He adorns it with glass of various colors, which is wound upon his globe much as a cord is wound on a bobbin in a spinning machine. He fashions the exterior of his bulb in various forms by rolling it along patterns. The whole process is so simply and quickly done, the glowing mass of glass being handled as if it were plaster or clay, that one is amazed.

The cheaper line of work is going on at the same time near by. This is what is known as pressed glass. One man reaches into the furnace with a long tube, extracts a small quantity of metal, plunges it into a mould, another man cutting off the superfluous portion with a pair of scissors, a lever is pulled and the piston of the mould comes down, pressing the glass into the shape of a butter dish or cream pitcher. In a trice the bit of molten stuff has been converted into a dish that is almost perfect. A little finishing, a bit of polishing, done also by machinery, will make it ready for the market; and when it is done it will be a thing of beauty, bright and glistening, almost as clear and fine as cut glass itself, and yet very cheap. This is but one of an almost infinite variety of methods by which modern manufacturers produce the most beautiful articles at prices within the reach of the multitude.

The bowls, pitchers and glasses which are to be decorated by hand are produced in the same way, though of finer material and more careful workmanship. The beauty of cut glass consists not so much in the quality of the material as in the exquisite nature of the work put upon it. In this World's Fair glass factory you may see glass cutting in all its phases. A dozen or more young men before emery wheels working by steam power, with streams of water trickling down upon the peripheries, grinding and cutting the surfaces of the glass dishes according to the patterns which have been chalked upon them in the pattern room. To produce a perfect cut glass rose bowl of medium size one young man will work for a week or more, and thus you may see why it is that cut glassware costs so much money. He must grind and grind, cut and cut, hour after hour to produce the almost innumerable prisms which reflect the rays of light like a diamond and make this product of the glass blower's art like the finest precious stones.

There are single pieces of cut glass in this exhibit which represent a month's hard work by the most skillful of mechanics in the grinding and polishing alone, and perhaps two weeks more of work in superintendence, inspection, finishing and assistance. The result of all this effort is glorious, and costly.

Some of the most beautiful souvenirs of the Exposition are made in glass. All sorts of articles have pictures of the principal Exposition buildings within them in delicate lines. On some you may have your name engraved while you wait. These engraved souvenirs are very popular, and large numbers of them are sold every day.

But the most wonderful thing in the show is the glass fabric. One of the workmen in this concern discovered some time ago that he could spin glass into threads of even size and texture just as wool or cotton is spun. He talked to the proprietor about it, and the result was that the firm decided to make a specialty of spun glass articles in case they could find sale for them. They began in a modest way, but their wares, on account of novelty as well as beauty, have attained such popularity that glass spinning is now an important feature of the business. It would be difficult to imagine anything more dazzling and curious than this process. The molten glass is spun out into a long thread by the rotation of a spindle, and on being cooled is wound around a bobbin precisely as one would wind yarn, though of course the diameter of the spool is pretty large. The makers say the glass spins out in very even thickness, and runs surprisingly "true." From the spinning it goes to the loom. One girl cuts the threads into the proper lengths and inspects them for faults. Another operates the loom. Each glass thread is laid in by hand, and a careful movement of the machine pushes it to its place in the fabric. Then another thread is put in, and so thread by thread the metal textile grows. It is slow work, a nimble-fingered girl, with one assistant, being able to make but a quarter of a yard of glass cloth in a day.

Naturally glass cloth is expensive. Sixty dollars a yard is the present price, and it is easy to figure out from this basis what the value of a dress pattern would be. The firm is now making a glass gown for Princess Eulalia, who saw some of the fabric and the method of making it a few weeks ago, during

THE ARTILLERY AT CHURCH.

The Newport Artillery, Lieutenant Colonel Barker commanding, turned out in full ranks Sunday evening, to attend divine service at the First Baptist Church, where the pastor, Rev. W. F. Arrington, preached a special sermon appropriate to the Fourth of July. The Artillery occupied seats in the body of the church, and the remainder of the audience room was well filled. The services opened with an anthem by the choir, after which "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Hail Columbia" were sung by the choir, the audience joining in the choruses. All then joined in singing "America" and, after prayer, the pastor preached the sermon, taking his text from Ecclesiastes iii:8—"A time of war, and a time of peace."

Peace is the fruitage of war. The calm, in order not to be ominous, must follow the tempest. It is quite customary for many to think that peace is the normal condition, and that carnal warfare is all there is of war. These views are both erroneous. Rest is not the normal condition of human affairs. Upon the character of man is impressed the nature of conflict and endless activity. Calm is characteristic of death rather than of life, and no ultimate peace is to be expected on this earth. The religion we profess extends promises of endless conflict. Christ continually urged upon the world the necessity of constant conflict. This statement is no endorsement of war, as many regard war, the striving after personal ends by the needless shedding of blood. There have been more conflicts in the world since Christianity began than ever before. There must be continual conflict in behalf of Christianity. War, as treated here, is a conflict that has a legitimate object. Peace would be ignoble if conflicts, to secure that peace, were unnecessary. So long as there are wrongs to be righted, so long as there is oppression to be checked, so long as the hirelings are oppressed in their wage-earnings, so long must warfare be continued. On the pages of history there are names which stand out prominently for their efforts for honor and justice, names which are honored for conflicts; not for piracy and plunder, not for the willing shedding of blood, but for their unwillingness to shed an unnecessary drop of blood. War in its highest sense is not unnecessary, not cruel. What would have been the effect upon civilization had there been no Marathon, no Thermopylae, no battles in the Swiss cantons, no Waterloo, no Bunker Hill, no Gettysburg, or no New Orleans?

War must always be carnal. Like other exercises, the methods and motives of warfare have steadily improved; rules and codes have been adopted, and every effort made to lessen the deadly effect of war. In our day, while the means of warfare have been steadily improved, there has been a constantly growing desire for peace. Peace congresses are familiar institutions and courts of arbitration have secured peace. There are symptoms everywhere of a dawn of universal peace. The vast standing armies, although ready for war, are awaiting the order to disband and disarm. Their very presence is helping the coming of the great day of peace. Warfare does not pay unless it takes the place of a shameful peace. The recent naval review, when the war vessels of the leading nations of the world gathered in New York harbor to do honor to the American republic, and all in unison belched forth from their monster guns a tribute to the chief executive of the United States, was a striking indication of the dawn of peace, and may be regarded as the token of a jubilee when all nations shall be at peace. One thing is certain, that we are on the verge of new conditions. Industry has already taken the first place, and today there are more men employed in industrial pursuits than in all the standing armies of the world.

The presence in every state of militia companies is an encouraging sign. While they are drilled in military tactics, to be ready for war, they are really peace organizations. The better drilled men are, the better are they able to preserve peace. Military discipline in our schools and colleges is valuable more for peace than for war; it trains the youth of our country for peaceful pursuits. All this organization may be applied by the enlightenment of man to the extension of the influence of Christianity. What a grand employment for the military companies it would be, if their efforts were directed to the spreading of the gospel of Christ; if all the benefits of our civilization could be given to the pagans. The time is perhaps not yet come, but there is an inception of such a plan in the formation of societies of missionary workers. Among all the races of the world, the Anglo-Saxon is the best fitted for aggressive conflict, the best fitted to carry on the greatest works and the greatest enterprises. The Jewish, Grecian and Roman people had their place in building up the civilization of the world, and it may be that the great Anglo-Saxon race is to be the power to carry the highest civilization to all the world. It is a race admirably equipped to upbuild all the forces that go to make a new and enlightened humanity. Christ has given to our race the grandest privilege ever offered to any people, to carry on the work of the gospel and to uplift the nations. The Newport Artillery, with its honorable record, has before it an opportunity to do nobler deeds in the cause of Christ. Let your ideal be the cross of Christ; bend all your energies, not to death and destruction, but to bringing about, in the highest degree, the reign of the Prince of Peace.

CLUBHOUSE AT CEDARHURST BURNED

The clubhouse of the Rockaway Club at Cedarhurst, Long Island, was burned to the ground Saturday. The fire was discovered at 7.30 o'clock, while the few members in the house were dressing for breakfast. Scarcely had smoke been detected before the flames shot up over the wooden balcony outside. The fire began in a corner of the ground floor near the steward's apartments. It spread very rapidly and in five minutes the whole house was ablaze. Five fire companies with engines were summoned, but failing to find available water on the premises they were of little help, and in less than half an hour the whole building was burned to the ground. Only the basement and the chimneys of brick remained standing. The stables, which stood at a distance of a hundred yards, were unharmed. Two or three of the members in the building had rather narrow escapes.

So rapidly did the fire spread that scarcely any of the contents were saved. All the club records, which had hastily been put into a trunk and dragged out to the verandah, were burned. All the silver polo cups, the trophies of the club, likewise, were lost, among them the $1,000 Alden challenge cup, which was to be contested for the last time today. A promenade concert, to which five hundred invitations had been issued, was to have followed the match.

The loss is estimated at about $50,000, which is partly covered by an insurance of $30,000. If the insurance is promptly paid, it is expected that a new clubhouse will be built on the spot at once.

Captain R. H. J. Blake, the superintendent of the club, who was in Newport making arrangements for the opening of the polo season of the Westchester club, lost everything. He resided at the club, occupying rooms which he had fitted up himself. All his valuable collection of medals, stars, curios and mementoes, including personal relics of the Crimean and Sepoy wars, were destroyed.

A DREAM.

I dreamt that over the winter world
The winter winds were sighing,
And into the orioles' empty nests
The flakes of snow were flying.
The vines along the garden wall
With crystal ice were gleaming,
And in the garden, dull and bare,
The summer flowers were dreaming.
The snow lay deep over withered grass,
The skies were cold and gray,
And slowly the dreary night came on
To end the weary day.

I woke. High up in the orchard boughs
A hundred birds were singing.
And in the birch trees' pleasant shade
The orioles' nests were swinging.
Along the river, tall and green
I saw the rushes growing,
And daisy petals white as snow
Among the grasses showing.
The flowers held the sunshine bright,
The breezes were at play,
And swiftly the dreary night came on
To end the happy day.

....Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Boston Journal of Commerce, has been named by the World's Fair executive committee on awards one of the judges in the textile groups. He is not certain that he will be able to accept, as the duties will require several months time.

....A despatch to the New York Sun, dated Christiania, Norway, says that there is a lineal descendant of Eric, who landed on American shores long before Columbus, who is now a hospital steward in the United States service. Charles Ogmundsen, as he is named, is now at Christiania on a four months' furlough. When on duty he is stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky.

....Governor Russell of Massachusetts has honored two literary men by the appointment of James Jeffrey Roche as a member of the Boston park commission and Robert Grant as judge of probate of Boston. Mr. Roche has been engaged for many years in journalism, being a co-worker with the late John Boyle O'Reilley on the Boston Pilot, and since the latter's death its editor. Mr. Grant is the author of several popular novels.

....A handsome new memorial chapel, presented to the town of West Lenox by John E. Parsons of New York, was dedicated Friday with interesting services. The first service at 11 o'clock was in memory of Helen Reed Parsons, daughter of the donor. The sermon was preached by Rev. Arthur Brooks of the Church of the Incarnation New York. In the afternoon a childrens festival was held, with an address by Rev. W. W. Newton. At the closing service in the evening Rev. T. DeWitt Mallery of Lenox delivered an address. The chapel is a handsome structure, built of native dolomite, the interior being finished with oak, buff brick walls and tiled floors. The structure is completely equipped for service, and is designed for the use of all denominations.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The Fourth of July will ever be America's great holiday. It is the anniversary of the nation's nativity and its annual return awakens enthusiasm among all classes of people who are in love with popular institutions, here or elsewhere. For it cannot be denied that republicanism throughout the world is based largely on the success of the experiment which we have in hand.

We speak of the inauguration of popular government in our case as an experiment, for it can scarcely be claimed that a hundred years is sufficient to establish so important a principle. With us the trial thus far is highly encouraging, but it should be borne in mind that numerous other republics have been founded on the Western continent whose outcome is not so hopeful. Very few intelligent people will be inclined to say that the South and Central American republics furnish satisfactory proofs of the fitness of the people for self-government; so that success on our part furnishes but one illustration in favor, to a dozen or more against. This is not so encouraging a record as we could wish, but it is the best yet afforded.

The real difficulty in maintaining a government by the people springs from the ambitions of individuals and the readiness of the masses to ally themselves with leaders who are struggling for personal supremacy. The division of the people into hostile parties and the organized strife for mastery is always perilous, and especially so when these organizations take on an established character and array themselves against each other on every possible occasion. It is this clannishness, or partisanship, alone, that leads to the revolutions and upheavals of society from year to year in the smaller republics. Our own great rebellion sprang from the same conditions, long established, and cherished until the bounds of obedience were passed and the pent-up elements of angry partisanship let loose. And it is quite possible that sectionalism, this time between the East and the West, and partisan ambitions for office and honors, may lead to troubles in the future, as they have in the cases referred to. There are certainly many discordant elements among us, which would do our government harm if they could, either by the introduction of imperialism or the inauguration of anarchy.

But, in common with the nation at large, we believe that out of it all the great American republic, whose declaration of independence we celebrate tomorrow, will hold steadily on in her course, and that the stars and stripes, emblems of political freedom, will continue to float over increasing millions of people. The discordant elements, though upheld by such men as Altgeld in his official character and courted by politicians in their strife for their personal advancement, can be held in subjection, and they must be dealt with sternly. The American people, proper, are fully able to maintain republican institutions; and by that we mean such as are native-born and those foreigners who come to us with the purpose of becoming American citizens, in spirit as well as in form. It behooves all such not only to celebrate the nation's natal day, but to look well to the foundations on which the superstructure rests. It is still true that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

CLOSING THE SILVER MINES.

It is believed by many that the threatened closing of the silver mines is but a game of bluff. Whether this be so or not it may safely be assumed that such a stoppage would not kill and that Sar Harbor, as we know it, is solid land and not a sheet of placid water. The Italians had better come hither. Newport harbor has water in it; enough and to spare.

Chili extends a hearty welcome to Hon. James D. Porter, the new American minister. They are also well pleased to be able to bid ex-Minister Egan good-bye.

Ex-Governor A. H. Littlefield is reported seriously ill, with little hope of his recovery.

The day we celebrate—tomorrow.

OVER SILVER PRODUCTION.

The silver flurry can be compressed in a nutshell. The world is producing too much silver—more, much more, than can be used as money or in the mechanical arts—and it has declined in value until it can no longer be maintained as money without a radical change in the basis of value.

Because silver is one of the precious metals and has been a circulating medium in all ages, we are slow to realize the now plain truth that over-production of silver must be subject to the inexorable laws of supply and demand. We have committed the folly of exhausting the whole power of the government to maintain the value of silver, but those efforts have only made failure the more disastrous by delay.

Our silver producers are now brought face to face with the fact that they must either lessen the supply by closing the less profitable mines, or they must accept yet lower prices for silver. There is more silver than is wanted, and the emergency must be met just as the over-production of iron, steel, woolens, cottons, machinery, etc., is met. The supply must be reduced to the demand, or competition will break prices; and no circulating medium can be put out by the government to any considerable extent that is subject to the fluctuations now visible in silver.

It is of no consequence in this evening of the nineteenth century that silver was once the chief circulating medium of the nations of the earth. We have metals today in common use which once were more costly than gold, but they are now produced in such abundance as to rank them with the cheapest of our metals. It is only a few years since steel rails cost $160 per ton, and iron rails have cost nearly $100 per ton; but today steel rails are produced at an actual cost of $25 and iron for much less.

The fact that silver is now an integral part of our financial system calls for wise legislation to extricate us from our unfortunate condition. The departure to a sound money policy must be taken without violent shock to our vast and varied business interests; but the departure must be taken none the less. As far as silver can be used without peril to public credit, it should continue to be used in this country; but the evident and resistless drift of the world is to the gold standard, and this country, with all its exceptional resources, cannot defy the considerate judgment of the world.

England departed from the silver standard of money as early as 1816; Germany followed in 1871; the Latin Union in 1878; Austria in 1892, and India in 1893. In this country silver was practically demonetized in 1873, but we have returned to silver by methods which have gradually impaired our credit until the whirlwind is now upon us. Only in Mexico and South America, outside of the United States, are silver coins made money with an arbitrary value.

When it is remembered that our government has fully $100,000,000 of surplus silver, even at its present low market value, that is thus kept off the markets of the world, although entirely useless to the government, and not wanted by any country of the world, the extent of over-production of silver may be appreciated. Suppose our government were to sell the silver it has no present or probable future use for, what would be the measure or the decline in silver? In fact, with all the severe decline in silver, our government has bolstered it at fearful cost, and dingled it out from all our industrial products, for special protection against the laws of supply and demand. That support is no longer possible, and silver producers, like newspaper publishers, iron and steel producers, etc., must bow to the immutable laws which govern the business of the world.—[Philadelphia Times.

A QUEER ADVERTISEMENT.

The following uncanny paragraph appears in the Policyholder of London:

On Friday next, at 1 precisely—To trustees, investors, insurance and reversionary offices—highly important sale of valuable old and unencumbered insurance policies, with large additions, amounting to a capital sum of £94,621, on the life of a gentleman aged 72½, in the following first class offices, viz: The Legal and General Life Assurance Society, the Clerical, Medical, and General Life ditto, the Rock Life ditto, the Law Life ditto, the Royal Exchange ditto, the Guardian Fire and Life ditto, and the London and Provincial Law Life Assurance Society.

We hope the old gentleman will live peaceably after the auction. If we were the party we should neither eat, sleep, nor walk abroad so long as our life hung in such a balance, says the editor of the Standard, the well-known insurance journal of Boston, and we are inclined to agree with him.

The farmers were urged to vote for a protective tariff so as to create a home market, which would be better for them than all the foreign markets in the world. Well, in the McKinley bill protection won, and the price of wheat is lower today than ever before in the history of the country. What is more, the wheat grower, in order to get these prices, has to send his products abroad. In these days, when the universal brotherhood of nations as well as of men is recognized, the people who fence themselves off from the rest of mankind by Chinese walls or prohibition of international trade are pretty sure to get left, as we are now.

The official report of the sinking of the Victoria indicates that the fault was with Admiral Tryon, who lost his life along with his sailors. He gave an order to the commander of the Camperdown which appeared so perilous that he hesitated, when the signals said that the order was imperative and must be obeyed. Such being the case, there was nothing left for Admiral Markham but to obey. Had he refused and there had been no accident the disobeying chief would have probably been in disgrace today.

The Sunday attendance at the World's Fair, contrary to general expectations, is much smaller than on week days. Those "poor workingmen" prefer to go like other people, as they are fully able to do. In these days too many of other people's sins are charged up in the account against the working classes.

It would have been odd enough if Captain Andersen had successfully braved the perils of the Atlantic ocean in the Viking, and been drowned in the Erie canal. And yet such came very near being the case.

The Democrats are getting very particular in North Carolina. They ask that the postmaster of Dallas be removed because he goes barefoot while discharging the duties of his office.

The Italian cruiser Aetna, which was expected at Newport, has gone to Bar Harbor. It will find that Bar Harbor, as we know

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE NEWS.

NO SILVER PURCHASES.

An Order from Secretary Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Secretary Carlisle has decided not to resume the purchase of silver today and has so notified the principal firms that offer silver to the treasury on purchasing days. This action is unusual, but as the matter of purchasing silver on given days is discretionary with the Secretary of the Treasury, he is simply exercising his right. The reason assigned in the notice sent to intending offers is that the Treasury Department had not yet completed its annual settlements, made at the end of each fiscal year at the United States mints. Whether silver purchases will be resumed on Wednesday next is left open and will not be determined until Wednesday comes, and circumstances will then decide the matter. The price paid for silver when the Treasury Department completed its June purchases was $0.8220 per ounce. Since then it has declined to $0.62 per ounce and is quoted today at $0.7380 per ounce.

STUDYING SYSTEMS OF TAXATION.

Providing for a Deficit Resulting from Reform of the Tariff.

BERLIN, July 3.—It is understood here that the United States legations in Europe have been instructed to study and report on existing systems of taxation, in order that the Washington government may select the least oppressive and offensive, to cover the deficit which will result from the reform of the tariff. The member of the Berlin legation who is examining the Prussian system is inclined to favor the adoption in the United States of a tax similar to the direct property tax, recently approved by the Landtag. The wealthier classes in Prussia, he says, do not complain bitterly of the new tax and the poorer people consider it equitable. The rich men in America, however, he thinks, would resist stubbornly the introduction of the tax.

A SOP FOR THE POLES.

Emperor William Makes Promises to their Leader.

BERLIN, July 3.—Emperor William today granted an audience to Herr Von Koscielski, a leader of the Polish party. His Majesty learned from the Polish leader that his party demanded in return for their support of the army bill certain concessions in regard to national schools. The Emperor readily fell in with the views expressed by Herr Von Koscielski and summoned Dr. Bosse, minister of instruction, who was directed by the Emperor to prepare a scheme that would satisfy the Poles' demands for national schools.

Ex-Speaker Crisp Calls upon Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Ex-Speaker Crisp arrived in Washington this morning from Atlanta, Ga., and repaired at once to the Treasury Department, where he had an interview with Secretary Carlisle at whose suggestion he came North. The interview lasted twenty minutes.

Run on a Bank in Williamsburg, N. Y.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 3.—There was a fight run on the Williamsburg Savings Bank this morning. Nearly one thousand persons crowded to get into the bank as soon as it opened and until noon hundreds of anxious inquiries were made. In most cases the inquirers went away satisfied. The proportion of those withdrawing their deposits was as five to one of those depositing.

General Messrole, president of the bank, said: "We paid out $233,000 on Saturday and took in $140,000, mostly from new depositors. We are prepared for a run, should it come. As a matter of fact we have more money than we know what to do with and our entire $5,000,000 surplus is available at once to meet any demands made on us. We are prepared for any demands which can be made and willing and anxious to meet them."

Death of a Brooklyn Millionaire.

NEW YORK, July 3.—William B. Leonard, a venerable merchant and a public spirited citizen of Brooklyn, died at his country residence in Owego N. Y., yesterday. He is said to have left $1,000,000.

Two Children Burned to Death.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Daniel and Myrtle McCarthy, aged respectively 13 and 10 years, children of Dennis Mc Carthy, were burned to death last night from a fire which resulted from the explosion of a lamp. Mrs. McCarthy saved her two younger children. The father was severely burned and may lose an arm.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis Starts for the Pier

CRANSTON'S, N. Y., July 3.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis and her daughter will leave Cranston's tomorrow morning for Narragansett Pier. Mrs. Grant will spend a few weeks at Narragansett as guest of Mrs. Davis.

C. P. Huntington and the Atchison.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The recent selling of Atchison securities is credited to C. P. Huntington. He is said to have parted with at least ten thousand shares of the stock. Mr. Huntington said to a reporter last week, in answer to an inquiry, that he had sold some odds and ends of bonds recently, probably $300,000 in all, but nothing at all like the amount he had it. The street story was that he had sold about $10,000,000 worth of securities.

Fall River Notes.

FALL RIVER, July 3.—James Hargood was arrested today for discharging a revolver, the bullet from which struck Nellie Herlihy, aged 8, and inflicted a scalp wound. The little girl was at work in the dish closet of her home. The shooting was accidental, and the wound will not probably prove fatal. Hargood is a saloon keeper and about forty years of age.

A Picture of the Borden Jury.

FALL RIVER, July 3.—The Borden sisters have received a large photograph of the jury before whom Miss Lizzie was tried and acquitted, and it has been placed in their parlor. It is understood that the foreman of the jury presented the picture in compliance with a request by the other members.

Ninety-six New Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The total number of fourth class postmasters appointed today was ninety-six, of which number thirty-five were to fill vacancies caused by death and resignations.

Dedication of the Guatemalan Building at the Fair.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The Guatemalan government building at the Fair was dedicated today, in the presence of a large crowd.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.

Tomorrow, unless the storm which so inopportunely came up this morning continues, the citizens will have a fair, though rather undemonstrative celebration of the anniversary of the nation's natal day. The sun will be welcomed by a national salute by the gun squad of the Newport Artillery, and by the ringing of the church bells. The several government stations will also fire salutes. The bell ringing will be repeated at noon and at 6 o'clock.

At 2 P. M. the children's festival will begin on the Gibbs lot on Gibbs avenue, where it was held last year. The children of the Lenthal school will meet at their building and march to the lot in a body, and the scholars of the other schools will be under the direction of their respective teachers. It is supposed that all school children have been supplied with tickets for the festival, but if any have been neglected they will be given a chance to eat and enjoy themselves by applying to the committee on the ground. The Newport Band will be present and play during the festival.

At 2.30 P. M., the Newports and Atlantics will play a ball game for a purse of $50, Mr. W. D. Bartley acting as umpire.

About 4.30 P. M., or immediately after the ball game, the athletic games will begin, under the direction of John Corridon, who managed the games last year. The prizes in each case will be $5 and $3, and the events will include hop, leap and jump, running long jump, pole vault, three jumps, one-mile run, one-mile walk, and two-hundred-yard run. The Newport Band will be present and play.

In the evening, from 8 to 10 P. M., the Newport Band will give a concert, and there will be a display of fireworks, under the direction of Mr. Martin, on the beach. Bandmaster Lilley has arranged the following program:

March, "Columbian".....Reeves
Overture, "William Tell".....Rossini
Waltzes, "Concert".....Gungl
Grand American Fantasia.....Bendix
Trombone Solo, Selected.
Mr. James Gillies.
Selection, "Wang".....Arr. by Thomas
Deuso, "Cocoanut".....Gillet
Descriptive, "Manhattan Beach".....Moses
Selection, "Falka".....Chassagnac
"American Republic".....Thiele

The day will be observed as a holiday by all the public offices, and at the government stations. At the Training Station the boys will have a special dinner at noon; at 2 P. M. they will listen to the reading of the Declaration of Independence, and will then be turned loose on the island, to enjoy the day in regulation boy style, with fire-crackers, base ball, and other sports. The Station band will give a concert during the afternoon.

The Newport Artillery and Naval Reserve Torpedo Company will take part in the celebration at Bristol, the former going by train to Bristol Ferry and the latter on Lieutenant Willoughby's steam yacht Wampanoag.

TWO FIRES.

About 7.45 Saturday evening an alarm was rung in from box 62, for a fire in a house on Webster street, owned by John Reagan and occupied by William Smith. The blaze was extinguished before the firemen arrived, there being practically no loss.

At just 9 o'clock Sunday morning, box 21 was struck. It did not take long for the firemen and those residing near Lake's Corner to learn that no church was calling to service, and there was soon a good-sized gathering of firemen and spectators in front of the two-story house Nos. 1 and 3 Pond avenue, from the roof of which smoke was issuing. After a good deal of hacking of shingles, and cutting of holes, and after the house had been plentifully wet down, the fire, which kept out of the sight of the spectators, was subdued. It was confined to the small space between the rafters and was difficult to reach. It is supposed to have started near the bed of a child, and was accidental.

The occupants of the house, Messrs. G. T. Swan and James T. Haire, knew nothing of the fire until notified by their neighbors, who proceeded to help them transfer their household possessions more rapidly than they were ever before moved. This work was done very well, and the furniture was gotten out with but little loss. Neither was insured.

The house was a new one, owned by Mr. T. B. Murphy and insured for $2,000 in the Hamburg-Bremens Company, through C. A. Hammett, agent. The loss will probably not exceed $400 or $500.

JAMESTOWN.

The question, "Where are the people?" which has been so often heard during the past two weeks, is now easily answered. The people, or many of them, are here. During the last several days there have been many arrivals, and the sober countenances of the hotel proprietors during the week past have given place to broad smiles, as their houses are filling up. The express and carriage men are in the best of humor, as after a long period of waiting they realize that their harvest has come, and there are trunks enough to satisfy the most ambitious baggage smasher. The registers of the several hotels, with one exception, show an increase of arrivals over this date last year. Hotel Thorndike, which is the largest house here, has for the month of June done a largely increased business. The comfortable and cosy Gardner House, the oldest hotel, has its usual good business. Many familiar faces are noticed, people who have patronized the house from its first season. The Gardner House this year is under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Littlefield and has been put in first-class condition. Captain Gardner, the original proprietor, who has reached an age when, as he says, he is living on borrowed time, although "resting on his oars," can be seen every day upon the "quarter deck" (piazza of the hotel), telling sea stories, and with an "eye to the windward" hails old friends as they pass by, and welcomes a stranger as he sails up alongside, looking for comfortable state rooms for the season. Mr. Knowles of the Bay View is receiving guests rapidly and expects a full house very soon. During the spring a comfortable elevator has been put in and many other conveniences added. This house is the second in size in the town, and is patronized largely by people from the West. Mr. Tefft, the proprietor of the Prospect House, had an experience of many years in the hotel business at Narragansett Pier when he came to Jamestown and took the Prospect. Although one of the smaller hotels, its reputation as a comfortable place in which to spend the summer is of the best, and Mr. Tefft has fully demonstrated the fact during the two past seasons that he knows how to keep a summer hotel. This is the only hotel fitted with electric bells.

Mr. W. A. Champlin, proprietor of the Champlin House, came to Jamestown many years ago, and started and kept for many years a summer boarding house in what was known as the J. H. Gardner farmhouse, owned by the heirs of Hamilton Clark. He did a successful business and always during the season his house was crowded. This was before the hotels were built, and Mr. Champlin had nearly a monopoly of the summer business, as his house was pleasantly located upon the shore. When his lease expired he purchased land on the Bryer plat and put up a small hotel, which has become very popular. The report from this house is a much increased business this year.

The Bay Voyage, which was moved from the hills of Middletown across the bay by its enterprising owner, the late James A. Brown, is doing a satisfactory business, the reputation of its cuisine last season being second to none in the town. The hotel this season is under the management of James A. Brown, Jr., who reports all the rooms taken, and expects a busy season.

Frank Cunningham and F. G. Cunningham of New Haven, Charles R. Holman of Worcester and W. L. Thompson of St. Louis are registered at the Prospect House.

The Conanicut Yacht Club has placed in position a large and convenient float, to be used as a landing for small boats.

Cutter Maggie has returned from New London.

There will be a hop at the Gardner House Saturday evening.

The first hop of the season will take place tonight at the Prospect House, Hotel Thorndike uniting in giving it.

Independence Day will be celebrated in Jamestown by a regatta of the boats of the Conanicut Yacht Club at 3 P. M., fireworks and bonfires on the shore, and a hop at the Bay View, to which all the hotel and cottage people are invited.

A pleasant birthday social, in honor of one of the guests, was enjoyed at Mrs. Clarke's, on Narragansett avenue, Saturday evening.

Catboat Rainbow took out for a sail a jolly party of ladies and gentlemen on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. John Kelly of Springfield, Mass., is at Conanicut Park.

Lieutenant Commander J. V. B. Bleecker and wife returned Saturday afternoon from a visit to Boston. Mr. Bleecker has just received a promotion as lieutenant commander to date back two years.

The family of Captain Amburst of the George E. Vernon left here Saturday evening to join him in New York.

TWO RUNAWAYS.

This morning, as Mr. Enos Hayward was driving a pair of horses into the city, the carryall in which he rode was upset at the entrance to Mr. W. B. Greene's estate on Broadway. A wheel was broken, Mr. Hayward was thrown out and the horses, clearing from the wreck, continued to Rhode Island avenue, where they were caught. Mr. Hayward escaped without injury.

About 11.30 o'clock this morning Scannevin & Potter's order wagon and horse made a lively runaway, starting on Mill street, near Johnston's mill. Mr. Potter was thrown out on Market square, near Sherman's store, and Mr. Joel Peckham's strawberry wagon was struck, its body, thills, and top being broken, and its horse cleared from the shafts. The runaway horse continued around the Police Station and was finally stopped, with only a single shaft, in front of Swinburne, Peckham & Co.'s mill.

THE MORTON PARK GATEWAY.

The new gateway for Morton Park was placed in position on Saturday. It is not nearly so impressive in appearance as the public had expected it would be, and will compare very unfavorably with the elaborate gates and posts with which Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Goelet, Mr. Van Alen and other cottagers have adorned the entrances to their respective dwellings. One sarcastic citizen was heard to remark that if the lettering were replaced by the words "Lager Beer garden" the gateway would look all right. It consists of two parallel half-circles of iron, connected by riveted iron lattice work. Over the centre of the arch, in gilt, is the following inscription:

1886.
Morton Park.
Gift of Hon. Levi P. Morton.

When the path about the entrance is graded and a suitable curbing set, the gateway will look much better than it did to those who saw it Saturday.

NEWPORTS BEATEN BY THE HOPES.

Saturday afternoon the Newports met the Hopes, and Umpire Meegan, at Adelaide Park, Providence, in the presence of about three hundred and fifty spectators, and were beaten, 4 to 3, in what was said by all to have been a very good amateur game. The visitors were treated to a disagreeable exposition of Providence hospitality, the yelling by the small crowd on the bleachers being so loud that the umpire could not be heard. The base runners took chances of having their arms and legs spiked or bruised, when running about second, and the umpiring was at times weird. Both sides put up a good stiff game, and every one appeared satisfied with the result. Tobin pitched an excellent game and was well supported, until the ninth, when the Hopes managed to bat out a victory. The Newports went up two men short and secured Parker of the Banner Boys to play left; and he apparently did all he could to give the victory to Providence. The coaching of Tobin made a decided hit, and greatly pleased the spectators. The score is as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Hopes	0	2	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	—4

PORTSMOUTH.

Flora Phinney is at home for the summer vacation, from Allenton, R. I.

Rev. Henry McIrone and Miss Etta Sherman will meet the young people of the town in the vestry of the Union church this evening, for the purpose of starting an evening school for the summer months.

As Levi Weaver was crossing a field a few days ago, on his way to school, he was attacked and bitten by a dog.

The teachers and pupils in District No. 1 had their picnic on Friday last, on the grounds of Mr. Constant Chase.

Mrs. Robert Almy, who has been confined to her bed for more than a year, has so far recovered is to be down stairs and walking about.

In the school in district No 1 the following pupils were not absent during the term: Mary Anthony, Emma Anthony, Julia Anthony, Edith Peckham, Ethel Carter, Carrie Paquin, Carrie Weaver, Clifford Peckham, Albert Brown, Robert Allen, Jr., Winfred Carter and Willie Anthony. The following were absent only one day: Helen Peckham, Carrie Anthony, Josie Anthony, Frankie Chase, Gould Anthony and Henry McCrone, Jr.

Colonel Fleming, wife and daughter of Newark, N. J., and Mr. Charles Heath and family of Orange, N. J., are at Peckside for the season.

POLICE NOTES.

W. F. Thomas created a serious disturbance at a late hour Saturday night in Touro Park. The patrol wagon was sent for by one of the disturbed neighbors and Thomas was taken to the Police Station, where he has pleaded not guilty to a charge of common drunkenness, and been committed to jail to await examination on July 7.

The flower thieves are about again.

The beats of the night officers have been changed.

LOCAL NOTES.

DANA SARSAPARILLA CO.:
GENTLEMEN:—I have been troubled with ASTHMA for 40 YEARS, suffering so badly as to be unable to lie down in bed for any length of time, being compelled to obtain what sleep I could sitting in a chair.
I have tried Doctors and every medicine I could see or hear of without obtaining much relief.
Last Spring I saw

DANA'S SARSAPARILLA

advertised and concluded to try it, though without much faith, but after taking a few doses, resting easier at night I continued, and at the expiration of a few days COULD SLEEP IN A HORIZONTAL POSITION AS WELL AS A CHILD. Have never lost any sleep since. In consequence of which my general health has improved wonderfully. Have only taken two bottles.
I remain, yours respectfully,
Freedom, N. H. JOHN A. CORSON.

GENTS:—I am personally acquainted with J. H. Corson and can assure you of his PERFECT RELIABILITY. Yours truly, a good watch, a handsome one—but don't "go broke" over it.

Fourteen-karat gold, filled, or coin-silver, elegantly engraved; enamel dial in modern Arabic numerals; jeweled works; stem-set and stem-winding. A gem to look at and a perfect time-keeper. It looks like a hundred-dollar watch; any one can take genuine pride in its looks and its behavior. The new, perfected, quick-winding "Waterbury" ($4 to $15).

No cheap Swiss watch can compare with it. Your jeweler sells it, in many different styles. 12

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE NEWS.

WELCOMED TO CHILI.

Enthusiastic Reception to United States Minister Porter.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Under date of Valparaiso yesterday, the Herald has this: James D. Porter, the new Minister from the United States, arrived in Valparaiso yesterday and proceeded this morning to Santiago, accompanied by Secretary of Legation McGarr. His reception by officials and the people was very enthusiastic. No other representative from a foreign nation has been so cordially received by Chilians in recent years. His welcome has been so enthusiastic as to surprise even the Chilians themselves, who have adopted this method of showing how pleased they are that another representative from the United States has come to take the place of Patrick Egan. Minister Porter will probably be formally received by President Montt on July 4.

Behring Sea Arbitrators Give a Banquet.

PARIS, July 3.—The American and English delegates to the Behring sea court of arbitration gave a banquet Saturday in honor of M. Develle, the French foreign minister. Toasts were drunk to the health of President Carnot, Queen Victoria and President Cleveland. John W. Foster of the American delegation thanked M. Develle for the cordial welcome that had been extended to the delegates.

Marine Disasters at Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, July 3.—Schooner Mattie Collins of Ragged Island was lost last night on Harbor Oderin. The crew were rescued with great difficulty. Schooner Edgar Foster of Beverly, Mass., is here, leaking badly. She has one hundred and fifty thousand pounds of fish aboard.

To Meet the Expense of the German Army Bill.

BERLIN, July 3.—The government is considering a plan to cover with a tax on railway tickets part of the expenditure required by the army bill.

Deliberate Murder and Suicide.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa, July 3.—After great deliberation and preparation Alexander Carey White, a coal miner, killed his wife and then himself yesterday. Difference about some money owned by his wife moved the man to do the deed.

De Roulede to Retire from Politics.

PARIS, July 3.—Paul de Roulede announces that he has decided to withdraw from political life for four years. M. Millevoye, who presented the bogus Cocarde documents in the Chamber of Deputies, has publicly declared that he was victimized by a forger.

Liverpool Shipping Decreasing.

LONDON, July 3.—A year's return of the shipping of Liverpool shows that the number of vessels using the harbor of Liverpool has decreased by 1,098. The decrease in tonnage is £500,000 and in receipts £75,000.

Russian Edict Against the Jews.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 3.—A ukase just issued decrees that hereafter Jews who change their names for any purpose, especially with criminal intent, shall be punished under the criminal code.

Minister McKinney at Bogota.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The Herald's Panama despatch has the following: Luther F. McKinney, the new United States Minister to Colombia, has reached Bogota.

Yellow Fever Decreasing in Costa Rica.

NEW YORK, July 3.—According to a Herald despatch, there is a marked falling off in the number of cases of yellow fever at Port Limon, Costa Rica.

Gladstone Sprains His Ankle.

LONDON, July 3.—Mr. Gladstone slipped and fell yesterday, and sprained one of his ankles. The injury is not severe.

A DAM FOUR THOUSAND FEET ABOVE THE SEA.

Over four thousand feet above the sea and nearly six thousand feet below the great peak of San Jacinto, in Riverside county, California, there has now reached the height of one hundred and ten feet what is probably the best built dam in America. It is in a very narrow gorge of solid rock and built of blocks of granite from three to five tons each, no small stone being used. The spaces between these are filled with rich concrete, mixed by machinery and rammed into place by steel rods. This makes what the Irrigation Age calls a monolith of the whole structure, with the advantage of having more flexibility than any other dam of equal strength could have. Its factor of safety is very heavy and its peculiar construction will make it as nearly earthquake proof as it is possible for a dam to be. With stone of such size it could stand for a long time a very heavy overflow, but an ample waterway will be provided to a height of one hundred and fifty feet, where it will hold 8,000,000,000 gallons. It may be built still higher if necessary. Though so high, it is not very expensive on account of the gorge being very narrow for the first hundred feet.

The watershed is over one hundred square miles of as good mountain watershed as there is in that part of the state. It is all high mountain, with steep slopes and an average rainfall of about forty-five inches in six months. When the gate was shut a few days ago one storm filled it to a depth of ninety feet, making a lake some two miles long. The lowest summer flow is enough to balance the evaporation, while the average will furnish a large amount of spring and early summer water after the lake is full. This water will be used upon what is called the mesa, in the rich valley of San Jacinto. In this valley are many thousand acres of the richest land, and two hundred and fifty artesian wells are there pouring out over two thousand inches of water. This will build up one of the most prosperous settlements in the new county, with quite a town and alfalfa fields and orchards on every hand. On the west, and some twenty to forty feet above the main valley where the artesian belt is, lie some thirty thousand acres of bench land that, with water, is the finest of fruit land, and upon which the artesian water cannot be taken. Upon this the water from Lake Hemett will be led by pipe and cement ditch and flume down the canyon with a fall of twenty-five hundred feet in a few miles, which will give power enough to run electric roads and lighting plants, besides considerable for manufacturing.

The death of Mr. Anthony J. Drexel, the banker of Philadelphia, is the third that has taken place within the last six months among the members of the board of trustees of the Peabody Education fund. The two others that have died were Senator Gibson of Louisiana and ex-President Hayes.

MAKING GLASS.

her visit to the Fair, and was greatly impressed with it. The value of the princess' glass gown will be something like $1,000.

This fabric, contrary to general expectation, is soft and silken. There is nothing harsh or brittle about it. It is a sheen of jewels. It is the finest of silks, plastered over with crystals. Glass fabric has this advantage over most other fabrics, it will not wear out. It does not tarnish in water, and if stained by a foreign substance may be washed with soap and water or with chemicals without in any way injuring its texture or color. I should not imagine it would ever be popular for dress goods. In the first place it is too expensive, and though the manufacturers may be able to cheapen it somewhat as they develop their processes, it is not likely to come within the reach of every-day purses. Moreover, it is too pretentious for any wear but to ballrooms, and there it should be magnificent. Where the glass fabric is of most service is in the making of hangings for rooms, curtains, portieres and wall decorations. It is not only rich and handsome, but it lasts forever and may always be cleaned. If dust accumulates upon it, take it down and dip it in water. Glass fabric is one of the novelties of the Exposition, and the manufacturers make up a great variety of small articles of it to be sold as souvenirs at reasonable prices.

ROBERT GRAVES.

A BOY'S PROSPECTS IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Boys of good character, who have no physical defect, and who can read and write fairly well, are admitted into the navy between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years. Between fourteen and fifteen years a boy must measure 4 feet 9 inches in height, and weigh not less than 70 pounds; between fifteen and sixteen, 4 feet 11 inches, and 80 pounds; between sixteen and seventeen, 5 feet 1 inch, and 90 pounds, and between seventeen and eighteen, 5 feet 2 inches, and 100 pounds. They must serve till the age of twenty-one as boys and junior seamen, and after that age they rank as seamen or petty officers. They are now allowed a sum of $45 for outfit, a fact which considerably enhances the advantages of the service. To discover the exact number of petty officers on board a fully equipped ship is by no means an easy task; but, at all events, the number of these minor prizes is encouragingly large, while still higher up, as the final goal of the common sailor's aspirations, are the substantial berths of the four warrant officers—held by the boatswain, the carpenter, the gunner, and the sailmaker—whose pay and privileges are the same as those of the junior officers.

And now as to the rates of pay. The pay of boys enlisted as third-class apprentices is $9 a month; the next promotion, to second-class apprentice, brings $10; the next, to first-class apprentice, $11 a month. Further on we have second-class seamen apprentices, with $9 a month, followed by first-class seamen apprentices, with $24 a month, these two grades corresponding respectively to ordinary seamen and able seamen, or simply seamen, whose pay is also $10 and $24 a month. It can thus be seen that a first-class seaman apprentice and an able seaman get each the respectable sum of $288 a year, which is $128 in excess of the highest sum paid to a first-class seaman in the British service, the only other navy in the world worth consideration on the score of pay and promotion. There is, besides, the daily ration of thirty cents, which runs through the ship from the apprentice to the commander, for, strange as it may appear to some people, Uncle Sam distributes just the same fare to the officers as to the apprentice, and that, too, only when on sea duty. There are no other allowances whatsoever made to the officers; they have to furnish all their own mess equipments and everything else.—[Harper's Young People.

SHADY DEALINGS.

Moody Merrill Brought to Light by his Son.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., July 3.—When Winthrop Merrill, son of the much-missed Moody Merrill of Boston, came here about a week ago to inspect the records in the Grafton county registry of deeds, he certainly looked upon the pages of some interesting data, some of which was news to him, and some of which was familiar.

He saw recorded on May 29, this year, a deed executed but three days previous, or on May 26, in which his now absent parent parted with four tracts of land in Campton, N. H., in consideration of $500 paid to him in hand by Arthur T. Dyer of Boston.

The sale, if there was such, was evidently made on the day on which Moody Merrill left Boston, and the papers were passed and sworn to before Winthrop Merrill, notary public.

The son of the missing man also saw the record of a deed in which Moody Merrill conveyed to Miss Cathie Smith, on Jan. 11, 1893, four lots of land, which were

Conveyed to the Grantor

by A. A. Cook on Aug. 10, 1892. This transfer of property was made by Mr. Merrill to Miss Smith in consideration of $1 and "other valuable considerations," as the legal term makes it.

If Winthrop Merrill went back still farther, he saw the record of the assignment of a mortgage of $5000 for $365 in 1883, which gave to Edgar Merrill, brother of the missing man, the farm which so many have said of late was the property of Moody Merrill.

It appears by the records that this same farm came into possession of the same Moody Merrill in 1865. This latter fact seems to prove the much asserted claim that Edgar Merrill has made all along that he, and not Moody Merrill, owned the farm on which he was living.

After Winthrop Merrill had surveyed the records to his heart's content, and it took him an hour to do that, he asked to see the on property in Campton and Plymouth. As the attachments are not recorded in the office of the register of deeds, his request could not be granted, but he was told that he could see the attachments if he would call on the town clerk in the town where the property was held.

This, it seems, he did not do, but, instead, went north from Woodsville, some say, to Groveland. From the latter place he could easily reach Sherbrooke, which is midway between Montreal and Quebec, and the belief here is that he saw his father on the trip.

What his purpose was in endeavoring to ascertain the holdings of his father in Grafton county seems to be an enigma.

The last thing heard of Moody Merrill about here is that he took a train west from Montreal about a week ago, or a day or two after his son came here. A railroad man gives the story out and claims to have seen him. He is said to be traveling with a lady companion at last accounts, but this report is not as reliable as that which says that he is alone and looking careworn and friendless.

Cornerstone Laid by Cardinal Gibbons.

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—The cornerstone of the new St. Joseph's hospital was laid by Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore yesterday, with impressive ceremonies. Father Kinnerney of Pawtucket delivered the sermon, and there was a large attendance of clergy of the diocese and from out of town. A solemn pontifical high mass was celebrated in the cathedral in the morning. Cardinal Gibbons preached the sermon, and a parade of Catholic societies took place in the afternoon.

Serious Runaway Accident.

BOSTON, July 3.—John W. Graham, 40 years old, while driving along Wall street, Charlestown, yesterday, was thrown from his carriage. He struck upon his head and was unconscious when picked up. The cause of the accident is said to be the frightening of the horse, which became unmanageable and ran away. Mr. Graham was removed to the Massachusetts general hospital, where his condition was pronounced quite serious.

Frank Jones Entertains Insurance Men.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 3.—There were unusually lively times in town Saturday. Over 350 agents of the Granite State Fire Insurance company of Portsmouth and over 50 invited guests assembled at the Wentworth hotel, Newcastle, at the invitation of the president, Hon. Frank Jones, and enjoyed the annual banquet with which Mr. Jones has for the past four years opened this delightful summer hotel.

Found Dead in a Car.

DANBURY, Conn., July 3.—The dead body of a man was found in a passenger coach in the depot of the New York and New Haven railroad last night. The car had been there all day. The man had committed suicide. He is a stranger here, but from papers found on his body it appears that his name is Grubb, and that he lived on Fairfield avenue, Bridgeport.

Knocked Off a Car and Drowned.

BOSTON, July 3.—George Miller (colored), 45 years of age, was upon the top of a car yesterday that was passing across the Charles river drawbridge on the Lowell division and was knocked off into the water by coming into contact with a suspended beam. Before assistance could reach him he sank from view.

Body Found in the River.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 3.—A body was found in the Merrimac river Saturday and has been identified as that of John Rogers of this city. It is believed to be a case of suicide, caused by despondency brought on by ill health. Rogers has been missing since Wednesday.

SATURDAY'S BASEBALL.

Harvard Defeats Yale and Boston Leads the National League---Other Games.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Jack Highlands, Mason and Sullivan have much to answer for. These three men were the direct cause of an enormous throng of people going temporarily crazy. It was at the ball game here Saturday. Harvard defeated Yale, 6 to 4, and won the championship series. The game was won by good clean batting by the Harvard men. Mason caught Jack Highlands almost perfectly, and that means that the Yale batters couldn't hit Jack's curves.

A SILVER RUMOR.

The Silver States to Form a Corruption Fund to Impede Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A telegram from Denver has been received here alleging that preparations are being made in the silver states to start a corruption fund of $50,000 to contest legislation in favor of silver at the extra session. The story bears strong indications of improbability, but runs as follows:

"A number of the foremost silver leaders in Colorado are quietly engaged in the work of raising a substantial fund to be used in lobbying in the interests of a free coinage bill in case the Sherman act shall be repealed. The newspapers of this city have refrained from mention of the movement for obvious reasons, but the fact that the work is going on has been apparent. It is alleged that about $50,000 will be subscribed in Colorado, and that material additions to that amount from all the western mining states will swell the sum to a formidable fund."

Hoke Smith Talks on Childhood.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 3.—When Rev. S. Edward Young introduced Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith as speaker of the national services yesterday there was not so much as standing room in the Asbury Park Auditorium. The people came from all parts of the country to hear Secretary Smith talk on "Childhood." At the close of his remarks the vast audience arose and gave the secretary a hearty welcome. In passing around the plate the usher attempted to pass the secretary, but that gentleman dropped in a $25 check.

THE BATTLE ON.

Arguments on Rhode Island's Constitutional Fight Before the Supreme Court.

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—The greatest constitutional fight before the supreme court this state has ever known began in earnest Saturday.

Arthur L. Brown argued that the constitution of the state imposes upon the senate and house of representatives, and upon the governor as presiding officer, the duty of meeting in grand committee at Newport during the May session of the general assembly for the election of general officers, in case of failure to elect by the people.

He claimed that the senate had violated the constitution in not agreeing with the house to meet for the purpose of electing general officers.

The court reserves its decision, but will undoubtedly hand down an opinion at an early day.

A Peculiar Damage Suit.

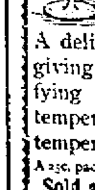

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—Hon. George J. West has been retained in a case in which $15,000 is claimed for the death of Alexander Briggs at a station of the Narragansett pier electric light company. A few days ago Briggs was out driving, when he spied a flash of light that ran along the grating in the front window of the station. He thought the station was afire, and jumped out of his carriage and rushed into the building to put the supposed fire out. When Briggs saw the grating still flashing with fire he put up his hand and seized it. He received a fatal shock and died instantly.

Resignation of Superintendent of the Census.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Superintendent of the Census Porter sent his resignation to the president Saturday. It is to take effect at once. It is understood that Mr. Wardle, the chief clerk of the census bureau, who is a Democrat, will act as superintendent for the present. Mr. Porter, it is said, has obtained a controlling interest in the New York Press, of which he was editor when he took charge of the census bureau, and will immediately resume the active management of that paper.

—Mr. Schuyler Hamilton is in New York. His family are occupying a cottage here.

—Many visitors are expected at hotels and cottages as guests for the national holiday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Vinton of Boston are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Peirce.

—Mrs. Walker of New York is at "The Chalet," guest of Mrs. Hugh L. Willoughby.

—About seventy-five members of the Providence Liederkranz visited Newport yesterday.

—The Salvation Army held a meeting at the beach Sunday. There was a large attendance.

—Miss Abby Alger, daughter of Rev. William R. Alger, is guest of Mrs. George W. Wales.

—Clark Chase and family of Fall River are occupying their summer cottage in Portsmouth.

—Mrs. Samuel Wetmore of New York arrived at her cottage on Bellevue avenue Saturday night.

—Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Stevens of New York are at "The Pines," on Clay street, for the summer.

—There will be a clambake tomorrow morning and afternoon, at Mrs. Grinnell's, at the Stone Bridge.

—Miss Wright of Boston will spend the summer with Miss Charlotte Hunnewell, on Yznaga avenue.

—Major W. P. Gould, United States army, and Mrs. Gould, are at the Wilbur cottage, on Church street.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Howard of New York are guests of Mrs. Fred W. Vanderbilt, at "Rough Point."

—Thames street had one of the largest Saturday night crowds ever seen on the street on Saturday.

—Mr. J. Pierrepont Morgan, whose steam yacht Corsair is in the harbor, is guest of Mr. Seth Barton French.

—About twenty-five members of the Narragansett Wheelmen visited Newport with their bicycles yesterday.

—Mr. Thomas Mott and family of Philadelphia have arrived at the Rutherfurd cottage on Harrison avenue.

—Colonel A. C. Landers has raised the mammoth tent on the Gibbs lot, for the children's festival tomorrow.

—The Fall River and Mystic cricket clubs of Fall River are to play a game of cricket at Morton Park tomorrow morning.

—One hundred and forty-nine barrels of fish, five for Philadelphia and one hundred and forty-four for New York, were shipped last night.

—Saturday tug Aquidneck brought the "Columbus," Anthony & Covel's new dredger, from Fall River, to begin operations on the Goat Island spit.

—Judge and Mrs. Gray, Mr. Heber R. Bishop, Mr. Joel B. Wolfe, Mr. William Post, Mrs. Barret and Mr. John R. Caswell have returned from New York.

—Mrs. Holder Brayton, sister of Mr. W. A. Depliteh of this city, died at her home in Adamsville Saturday evening. She had been failing in health since last October.

—The engagement is announced of Colonel Howard Smith of this city to Mrs. Kate Cartwater of Philadelphia. It is understood that the wedding will take place in October.

—Yesterday Messrs. Samuel C. Rector and Isaac J. Barker rode from this city to Boston on their wheels, in seven hours and ten minutes. This does not beat the record but is, under the circumstances, very good time.

—The usual Monday evening service will be held at the Beacon, Long wharf, this evening. Tomorrow the room will be open and refreshments will be served to all who call. A praise service will be held in the evening.

—Mr. S. H. Whitwell, Francis Boughter, U. S. N., Mr. William Tiffany, Mr. Ogden Coleman, Mr. Joseph Stickney, B. E. Thurston, U. S. N., M. W. Barnum, U. S. N., and Mr. T. H. Perkins are registered at the Casino.

—The work of re-laying the Thames street sidewalks was completed Saturday, and today the two crossings at the ends of the widened section are being twisted into proper shape to connect them with the walks of the narrower district.

—C. R. Holmes of Worcester, J. T. Bailey, Charles C. Birdseye and Miss Birdseye of New York, Irving C. Gladwin of Groton, Mass., Mrs. C. C. Mathewson and Miss S. Foley of Boston, H. O. Kittenhouse, U. S. N., and A. G. Berry, U. S. N., and wife are at The Aquidneck.

—Tomorrow, both day and evening, passengers will be carried to or from the beach on all cars of the street railway, for one fare; that is, all cars on the main line will transfer beach passengers without extra charge. Beginning at 6 o'clock P. M., special trains will be run between the Broadway turnout and the beach.

—Mr. Daniel Watson has sold for James E. K. Crandall of Perryville, R. I., his farm of one hundred acres, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situated on the old post road between Charlestown and Perryville, near the Atlantic ocean, to Mr. D. L. Briggs of this city.

—Steam yachts Intrepid, Golden Rod, Radha, Susquehanna and Ava, schooner yachts Republic, Yarana, Meteor, Miranda, Sea Fox, Alert, Harbinger, Quickstep and Sachem, and sloops Thetis, Valkyrie, Minerva, Charlotte, Aniquin, Mariquita, Reliance and Lirus and cutter Zigeuner are in the harbor.

—Mr. George H. Norman has been mentioned as the possible new president of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company. It is thought probable that Mr. J. R. Kendrick, until recently general manager of the Old Colony and now third vice president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, will be the successful candidate.

—The reporters and other attaches of the Fall River News and Herald played a game of ball Friday in Fall River, the News winning, 13 to 9, in five innings. Tom Rice, who is now a reporter on the News, pitched for his team, and the Herald acknowledges that the only hope their nine had was that the News catcher would not last.

—The Bailey gold medal, awarded each year to the apprentice on the cruising ships of the training squadron having the highest rank for the year's work, was presented Saturday at the New York navy yard to Apprentice Walter E. Whitehead of the Monongahela. Whitehead is a Fall River boy, and secured an aggregate of 472 points in the various branches of his studies and work.

—Yesterday Mr. W. A. Crosby opened the restaurant and bath houses at the beach, beyond the main pavilion, thus completing the opening of the beach for regular work. The pavilion will be lighted for the first time tomorrow evening and will thereafter probably be open every evening. The surf boat will be again maintained by the summer residents who have supported it in years past. It will probably go into commission this week.

—Mrs. Charles J. Ruthven gave a dinner, followed by a reception, at her cottage on Touro Park West Saturday. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hopkinson of New York, Miss Helen Jarvis of White Plains and Miss Fitch of Newton, Mass. The New Hampshire orchestra furnished music. Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Jr., and Mrs. W. S. Wells also entertained Saturday night, and Mrs. H. M. Brooks gave a dinner last night.

Stevenson, Boston; Mrs. E. Baxter, Warwick; Mrs. Thomas A. Doyle, Providence.

—Schooner G. E. Vernon, Captain Amburst, arrived at New York Saturday, forty-two days from Hamburg, with a miscellaneous cargo of merchandise, consigned to Miller & Houghton, New York. The Vernon encountered strong westerly winds and head seas, and lost and split sails. Captain Amburst reports that on June 26, last Monday, in Lat. 40.19, Long. 62.33 he passed an American sloop yacht, painted black. She was under single-reefed mainsail and jib and was heading southeast. There was a heavy sea on at the time, with the wind east, but the yacht was making good weather and behaving splendidly. The yacht was doubtless the Navahoe, which was passed on the day before by steamship Assyria in Lat. 42.40, Long. 50.30.

EX-GOVERNOR WETMORE'S INJURIES.

There now remains but little doubt of the full recovery of ex-Governor George Peabody Wetmore from the dangerous fracture of the right humerus and dislocation of the shoulder.

Dr. Charles McBurney, assisted by Dr. W. M. Polk, succeeded Saturday in reducing the dislocation and setting the broken bone. The operations were peculiarly delicate, and Mr. Wetmore's many friends who called at the Hotel Savoy during the afternoon were delighted to know that the surgeons had signally succeeded with so difficult a case.

Mr. Wetmore came to New York especially to submit to the necessary operations for restoring his right arm. There had been some talk at first of the possibility of amputating the arm, but that was soon dismissed. Dr. Wyeth of New York and Dr. Porter of Boston, who were hastily summoned, decided that it would be best to set the fracture before attempting to reduce the dislocation. Having done this they returned to their homes.

It was decided early last week that the dislocated joint must soon be replaced in its normal position or dangerous results might follow. Thereupon Mr. Wetmore arranged to journey to New York. He stood the trip very well, and Dr. Polk, who has been his family physician for several years, decided on Friday that the patient would soon be ready for the operation.

Dr. Polk's specialty is abdominal surgery. He therefore called in Dr. McBurney to work upon the injured shoulder. At noon everything was ready. First Mr. Wetmore was put under the influence of anaesthetics. Then Dr. McBurney removed a large splinter of bone from the fractured part of the humerus, two and a half inches above the shoulder joint. This done, the next step was to reduce the dislocation—in other words, to set the shoulder joint that had been thrown out. This was hard to do on account of the lapse of fourteen days between the time of the dislocation and the reduction. Now came the joining of the fractured humerus. It was a difficult break, but skill and patience joined the parted bone. The pieces were wired together. Antiseptics in profusion insured the safety of every step in the operations, which lasted almost an hour.

Mr. Wetmore rallied splendidly from the anaesthesia and shock. Drs. McBurney and Polk soon left him. He was feeling more comfortable than he has at any time since the accident.

When a reporter called at the Hotel Savoy Saturday night, Mrs. Wetmore sent word that her husband was resting quietly and was feeling better. Although scores of friends called during the day none were admitted to see him. Perhaps Mr. Wetmore may receive a few friends today. Whether the family will go to Europe this month, as they had planned, it is still too early to say positively.—[New York Herald.

IMPROVEMENTS AT NARRAGANSETT PARK.

Narragansett Park, the site of Rhode Island's state fair, has this year been the scene of extensive improvements. Since last autumn over sixteen thousand feet of roof space has been built, connecting all the exhibition buildings and making one of the largest roof spaces for exhibition purposes in this country.

The association has been admitted into membership in the American Kennel Club, and this year is making a special effort to increase the kennel interests. A new building, 180 by 90 feet, has been erected and will be used especially for the bench show to be held in connection with the state fair in September. The sum of $2,500 has been offered in premiums and, with the entrance fee at one dollar, it is the intention of the association to make this show one of the great bench shows of America. A strong feature of the fair will be the poultry department. It will be held in a building 155 by 60 feet, which will be solely used for the purpose. For this exhibition $2,000 will be given in premiums, with no entry fee charged. Two new departments, food and domestic science and public school work, have been added.

For the first time in the history of the Rhode Island state fair, manufacturers and merchants will be given an opportunity to exhibit and sell their products and stock in trade, upon a plan fashioned after the merchants' display in the Mechanics' Fair at Boston. A building 160 by 50 feet, lighted by electricity and supplied with gas and running water, will be exclusively used. The interior will be painted and decorated and attractive booths will be erected by the association. The Horticultural Show will be held in a building 160 by 40 feet. The premiums given for this show have been greatly increased and it is intended to have a floral exhibit of great magnitude.

The premium list has been revised, enlarged and improved and will be the most complete ever issued. Plans for the re-organization of departments have been perfected and important changes made for the better display of articles exhibited. The premiums have been greatly increased and over two hundred additions have been made to the list.

The grounds and buildings will be lighted by electricity, and for the first time in the history of the park the exhibition will be kept open evenings. A double line of electric cars will run from Providence direct to the grounds, in addition to the present line of steam cars over the New York & New England railroad.

The Fall River Daily Herald on Saturday blossomed out in a Fourth of July issue of sixteen pages, printed in red and blue ink, which gave it a very patriotic appearance, even though it was not so easily read as the old-fashioned black ink. The issue looks well, and is a credit on the Herald Company and the advertisers of the Border City.

The public debt statement, issued Saturday afternoon, shows that there was a net decrease of $1,416,238.58 during the month of June.
